5G, the Mark of the Beast, and the UPC Code

Chapter 12

Bill Gates Funded Digital Identity Based On Your Vaccination History

Perhaps a third of the U.S. population who say they wouldn't take a "Mark" that prohibits them from buying or selling without it. I would think that most of those in this category are Bible-believing Christians. But people are prohibited in places from entering stores without a mask right now. And the mask isn't even the mark.

However, it shows human compliance, if they feel the cause is reasonable, or if they fear what will happen by the government if they don't, or if they are fearful of something deadly.

Or perhaps maybe the "Mark" of the Beast may also look like the answer to the world's problems:

- It identifies the wearer.
- It could be trackable.
- It unifies the people.
- It solves stealing money or stealing a person's identity.
- It makes one big economic system.

That's why so many are already for it. And it explains why so many (71%) would gladly take it today, if it were offered. People might even flock to get it, like an app on their smartphones. The fact suggests this virus has shown how it is that public compliance is easier than first thought.

Some people are saying Covid-19 is a hoax. I understand why they are saying that but we really need to be more precise in our understanding of it. Covid-19 is not a hoax. Instead, let's understand that it is manufactured, a false flag, a manmade created, orchestrated and very real event. No one would say 9/11 was a hoax, but it was a false flag to start the world on the path toward this "new normal" that we are running headlong into right now. A hoax is a deception. There is no deception about the consequences of this virus. Covid-19 is very real and very real people are dying allegedly from its impact from the worsening of chronic diseases already present in their bodies, known as comorbidities.

This past week, a video by Dr. Carrie Madej went viral because it exposed the true nature of the genetically-engineered purpose of the coming coronavirus vaccines. She describes the genetic changes that will be made to humans who take the vaccine, but underneath the layers of her information lays the real purpose of the vaccine. What is its purpose? To create a “hybrid” race of demon-humans such as existed in the days of Noah called ‘Nephilim’. Judaism’s Satanic Talmud clearly points to the coming Antichrist as a Nephilim. And if you’re going to be in his image, you also will be a Nephilim. This chapter will deal with this bizarre macabre aspect when talking about “In the days of Noe” mentioned in Luke 17:26 or 1st Peter 3:20.

The Nephilim (“fallen ones, giants”) were the offspring of sexual relationships between the sons of God and daughters of men in Genesis 6:1–4. There is much debate as to the identity of the “sons of God.” It is the opinion that the “sons of God” were fallen angels (demons) who mated with human females or possessed human males who then mated with human females. These unions resulted in offspring, the Nephilim, who were “heroes of old, men of renown” (Genesis 6:4).

What I am going to be discussing here is a “genetic” step to what we are seeing in our world today to create androgynous life form. It’s been growing for a century if not longer.

Androgyny is the quality of being neither feminine nor masculine. An androgynous, or unisex, style blurs the lines of gender identity or in some way combines masculine and feminine elements or features. For an individual, a lifestyle, or an article of clothing to be considered androgynous, it must have no discernable gender identity. A truly androgynous person is not readily recognizable as either a boy or a girl — and the confusion is intended.

While many things are neither male nor female (education, employment, automobiles, etc.), personal androgyny is rarely accidental. Many people choose the androgynous look to make a political or moral statement. Females who buzz their hair, bind their breasts, and wear baggy, male clothing are attempting to mask their femininity. Likewise, males who style their hair in traditionally feminine ways, wear frilly, feminine clothing, or apply makeup are attempting to challenge the stereotypical masculine appearance. A great number of people who choose to appear androgynous also struggle with gender identity issues, transsexualism, or homosexuality. But, if a person’s outward appearance is a matter of personal choice, are there moral and spiritual factors to consider? Does the Bible say anything about being androgynous?

God specifically created two distinct genders to serve two distinct roles in His creation - (Genesis 1:27). God made Adam in a special act of creation -(Genesis 2:7). Then He created a woman, Eve, from Adam’s rib to be a helper for him -(Genesis 2:20–22). Adam and Eve had distinctly different physical attributes. They were clearly different because God designed them to be different, and He liked them that way -(Genesis 1:31). The man and woman were designed to reproduce so that the earth would be filled with beings who bore the image of God -(Genesis 1:28). Only a male and a female coming together can create a new human being, and it takes those physical gender differences to make that happen. You will need to keep this concept in mind as we explore how the “Mark” of the Beast will unfold in this world of the half human, half beast.

When God gave the Law to Israel, He put prohibitions against the blurring of gender. Deuteronomy 22:5 says, “A woman must not wear men’s clothing, nor a man wear women’s clothing, for the LORD your God detests anyone who does this.” This does not refer to a woman slipping into a pair of Levi’s to muck the stalls or a man putting on an apron to grill steaks. This verse is referencing a trend on the increase today: the intentional masking of male or female characteristics in an attempt to defy one’s God-given gender.

God’s laws always focus on the heart. He is far more concerned with our motivations and heart attitudes than the result of our actions. People who intentionally reject the gender He gave them are rejecting Him and His design. In essence, a woman who dresses to appear androgynous is saying to God, “You made a mistake.” A man who cross-dresses or wears ambiguous clothing is saying to God, “You can’t meet my needs. You don’t know what you’re doing.” Both are ways of defying God’s right to be Lord over our lives. To reject one’s own gender or to hide it is one of the most blasphemous ways we can reject God’s right to rule over us. If He can’t even get our gender right, then how can He get anything else right?

Some may argue that by appearing androgynous they are not rejecting their gender, only the social stereotypes associated with that gender. However, that argument is too weak to stand, since there are dozens of alternate ways to debunk stereotypes while still celebrating the characteristics that make males and females unique. Women need not conform to frilly-silly, sexy, or revealing styles simply because culture has portrayed femininity that way. And men are right to resist the macho, emotionless Marlboro Man mold forced upon them by peers. But masculinity and femininity are embedded far more deeply into our souls than what is reflected externally. Gender is at the root of who we are as individuals. It is the starting place from which we begin our journey toward becoming all God intends us to be -(Romans 8:29).

A woman can be a fighter pilot, construction foreman, or truck driver while still celebrating her femininity in the way she looks. A man can be a stay-at-home dad, a nurse, or secretary without sacrificing his masculinity. Androgyny only confuses the issue. It is impossible to truly know and be known when the most basic part of a person, his or her gender, is kept hidden. People who choose the androgynous look may not realize the mixed message they are sending. They may believe they are downplaying gender in an attempt to focus on who they truly believe themselves to be. In reality, they are calling undue attention to gender by provoking the question in the mind of every passer-by: “What is it?”

Pop culture is going gender-insane, throwing common sense and reality out the window in its attempt to be “edgy” and “progressive.” Androgyny is now celebrated, and gender-reality is looked upon with disdain, but celebrating something doesn’t make it right, and despising something doesn’t make it wrong. Slavery was once celebrated; that didn’t make it right. Child labor is acceptable in many parts of the world; that doesn't make it right. Prostitution and child trafficking are rampant around the world; that doesn't make them right. And, even though gender-confusion, transgenderism, and androgyny are riding a wave of popularity today, that doesn't make them right.

Dr. Madej's video also raises the fact that when you take the vaccine you will become a product of the New World Order because you will now have become a GMO – a genetically modified organism! Think about this seriously. You will no longer be a human created in the image of God but a genetically modified entity owned by a corporation because you allowed them to put into your body a vaccine with an ingredient that can modify you DNA! If you are a skeptic and scoff at this then you need to study the damages and changes brought about with the introduction of soy milk and baby formula with soy as its key ingredient.

The Covid-19 test is suspected to be the starting point, in that it will have a dual purpose; i.e., obtain your DNA, and perhaps insert deep in your nasal cavity a latent pathogen (dormant) that can be activated at a later time. Celeste Solum (Bishop) refers to it as a Hydragel, and the Hydragel will contain a "payload". This payload can be chemical, biological, receptor, etc. The media has kept beating the drum, to get tested for the virus, emphatically so, it is part of the scare and fear-mongering tactics.

I viewed a medical video on the test procedure, and the device appears to be easily 10-inches in length, which I found suspect because of its length, since a mouth swab or a simple cotton nose swab, or a pin-prick drop of blood would have done the job. The video narrator addressed procedures in the case of individuals with nasal and sinus issues. I have never seen a device of this kind before. Vaccines given to young calves are administered this way, suggesting something is placed into the deepest recess of the nasal passageway of young beef calves. In the administering the human test, when removing the long narrow swab, the technician broke off the opposite end and put it in a medical waste container. The remainder of the test probe was placed in a sealable pouch for processing analysis.

Your product code – your personal bar (UPC) code – will come from the RFID tracking number on the vaccine dose! It is necessary to show the vaccine dose given to each person receiving it.

Dr. Madej has done an excellent job of explaining the "what" of the coming vaccine, even explaining how living humans will experience DNA changes. However, she did not explain the "why". It isn't just about money or even power. It is all about creating a new trans-human race of beings whose souls cannot be saved by God! This has always been about being like God. Read Isaiah 14:12-15. Satan cannot create human life form!

The truth is scientists are doing Satan's work of creating a race of Nephilim – half human, half demon – beings whose souls cannot be saved. That is why taking this vaccine means you may have taken the "Mark" of the beast. You will become not merely a “product” of the big pharma companies as Dr. Madej says, but a “beast”, not human. Beasts do not have redeemable souls! Only the human soul is redeemable. Revelation 14:9 says of these non-human souls:

9” Another angel, a third, followed them, saying with a great voice, “If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives a mark on his forehead, or on his hand, 10he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is prepared unmixed in the cup of his anger. He will be tormented with fire and sulfur in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb. 11The smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever. They have no rest day and night, those who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.” -(Revelation 14:9-11).

The reason for God not being able to forgive those who take the “Mark” of the beast is twofold. First, that person will have “married” Satan, i.e. will be in covenant with Satan, and Jesus will not be coming to forgive people for it this time. He or she will not be in an unbreakable covenant with Satan.

Second, he or she will now be a Satan-created (modified) “beast” whose soul is part demon. The demons are doomed to enter into and be tormented in the lake of fire. This is exactly what Revelation 19:20 is all about.

Remember Jesus’ words about the days of Noah? The days of Noah were all about Nephilim. Satan had created a race of beings through his demons having sexual relations with human women. Now, the demons – who, by the way are also those beings we call extraterrestrials or aliens – are using technological breeding programs and have successfully introduced genetic-altering technology to human science and medicine. The Nephilim spirit/soul cannot be destroyed but their souls remained. We now call them demons.

In the Jewish Talmud. In Judaism’s own words, it has been revealed that the Jewish Antichrist is expected to be part demon, part human – a Nephilim! Genesis 6 describes the interactions between strange creatures called Nephilim (literally “the fallen” ones) and men”. The article goes on to recount the history of the Nephilim after the flood. Then it says something very interesting in the Satanic Talmud:

The Talmud (Sanhedrin 97a) describes how the Nephilim will return as a part of the Messianic process. In the Talmud’s discussion between Rav Nachman and Rav Yitzchak, this messiah will be a product of Lucifer. Sanhedrin 96b discusses this. The Talmud was never meant to be read by other than the Jewish rabbis. In fact, Gentiles who read the Satanic Talmud are condemned to death. I deal with this in the Satanic Talmud in a series entitled; “The Satanic Talmud and the Synagogue of Satan”.

Dr. Carrie Madej in this Youtube video explains what will be the result of the coming Covid-19 vaccine. This is very important, so I want to repeat the importance of this because it has Biblical spiritual ramifications beyond what you may think or can possibly imagine.

Dr. Madej points out that the result of taking the Covid-19 vaccine will be “genetic alteration.” This will put humans in the same category as Monsanto seeds – GMOs – that will be owned by whatever pharmaceutical corporation put the genetic altering material inside you, having been done with your permission. Voluntary acceptance of the vaccine is required by Satan as is the case with any of the other Satan’s seductions.

This is why the Book of Revelation specifically addresses one industry among all of the earth’s merchant industries – sorcery. That word comes from the Greek word, ‘pharmakaeia’. God regards everything the pharmaceutical companies do as witchcraft, and sorcery. Strong’s G5331 φαρμακεία pharmakeia. From Strong’s G5332; medication (“pharmacy”), that is, (by extension) magic (literal or figurative): – sorcery, witchcraft.

One reason for making humans into GMOs is because GMOs cannot reproduce. A farmer using GMO seed has to buy new seed for each planting season. This is an aside point but farm livestock will not eat GMO corn or soy, not even rats or mice. Thus, the human population will be reduced to almost nothing within a generation. As old people die, there will be no new ones to replace them except those that are created in laboratories, in fertility clinics through artificial insemination of GMO sperm with human eggs and growing GMO humans in Petrie dishes. The birth rate has been in decline for the past three years, world-wide.

Who could have known and understood that the “Mark” of the beast was this kind of corporate ownership? Who could have known how it would come about and its ramifications until now, the end of days, and as we draw ever closer to the rise of the beast, the Antichrist ruling from Jerusalem, and his city, Mystery Babylon?

The ownership issue is critical. The vaccine cannot be made mandatory, according to the Bible, but your life can be threatened with not being able to buy food or get healthcare if you don’t voluntarily take it. The United Nations cannot make the vaccine mandatory. Too many people will protest over that. But they can make your life miserable until you do take it! Voluntary Submission!

You won’t be able to get to the wilderness where the “woman” of Revelation 12:6 flees to escape the Great Tribulation and be nurtured and prepared for the wedding to the Lamb of God, Jesus Christ. The pressure to take the vaccine will be so great that few will be able to resist. Some will resist for a short time. Others may hold out for a longer time, but all will face decisions for themselves and for their children that will cause them to relent and take the vaccine to get assistance – food and healthcare – from the within the system that they have been kept outside of because they don’t have the Mark. It will be our children’s and grandchildren’s needs that will pull on us more than our own needs.

The “Mark” of the beast is an ownership mark. You will belong to whoever modified you. You will be one of a new race of humans in this “new normal” who are owned and enslaved by the corporations. This is Satan’s mimicry of God’s eternal life, immortality, as His gift to those who are marked by Him. More importantly, this ownership will define human status within the New World Order government which God calls “Mystery Babylon.” This coming new world government’s headquarters will be Jerusalem. Announcement for such will occur right after the Rapture occurs.

Jerusalem (Mystery Babylon), is the 2nd beast of Revelation 13 which has been given power by the 1st beast of Revelation 13, the United Nations. The 2nd beast of Revelation 13 has an attribute that helps us to know what this beast is, who this beast is. That particular attribute is that it has 2 horns, but not just any type of horns. Those horns are lamb’s horns.

The lamb’s horns define what kind of entity this is. It is a beast that lays claim to the Passover lamb. There are 2 religions that claim affinity with the Passover lamb – Judaism and Christianity. Right now, 2 nations represent these 2 horns – Israel and the United States/Vatican. I have written on this symbiotic relationship between the U.S. and Rome in my series The Beast Empire.

Israeli Jews claim authority over all Jews worldwide. The United States, and the Vatican both represent Christianity worldwide in the realm of economics. Thus, the 2nd beast of Revelation 13 is a Judeo-Christian empire that rises in the end of days to bring the world the Antichrist (a.k.a. ‘beast’) and this ‘beast’s’ ownership mark. Mystery Babylon will be an economic power and religious government at the same time. There will be no separation of church and state, government and religion. The religion will be Marxist/Communistic and Kabbalistic in origin.

The corporations, says Revelation, will be in business with Jerusalem, Mystery Babylon. Revelation 18:3: “For all the nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her sexual immorality, the kings of the earth committed sexual immorality with her, and the merchants of the earth grew rich from the abundance of her luxury.”

What they own, what the corporations own, will be sold to Mystery Babylon. One commodity they will trade to Mystery Babylon will be humans who have taken the “Mark” of the beast. We live in the era of the Transnational Corporation, which dictate and transcend political entities such as sovereign states. By their economic size they are able to dictate countries into submission.

11”The merchants of the earth weep and mourn over her, for no one buys their merchandise any more; 12merchandise of gold, silver, precious stones, pearls, fine linen, purple, silk, scarlet, all expensive wood, every vessel of ivory, every vessel made of most precious wood, and of brass, and iron, and marble; 13and cinnamon, incense, perfume, frankincense, wine, olive oil, fine flour, wheat, sheep, horses, chariots, and people’s bodies and souls.” Revelation 18:11-13).

These are trafficked humans imported to Mystery Babylon as sex slaves and household slaves. This is still true, but there is more. The corporations who GMO'd you will sell you to the Antichrist for profit. It is likely that Dr. Madej was not thinking this when she explained the coming genetic modification of the Covid-19 vaccine. You need to make this connection and understand it in the spiritual terms according to the Bible and avoid this with your life and the life of your children. It is better to die without the Mark than to live with it!

More and more sites are referring to Bill Gates' ID2020 as the forthcoming "Mark" of the Beast mention in Revelation 13. The Trust Stamp is a vaccination based digital identity program funded by Bill Gates fitting the specifics as the "Mark" of the Beast. The Trust Stamp will be implemented by MasterCard and GAVI that will soon link your biometric digital identity to your vaccination records. The program said to "evolve as you evolve" is part of the Global War on Cash and has the potential dual use for the purposes of surveillance and "predictive policing" based on your vaccination history. Those who may not wish to be vaccinated will be locked out of the system based on their trust score. The "Mark" of the Beast will be encompassed the following:

- 1 The "Wellness Pass" Partnership
- 2 Digital Health Passport
- 3 India funds Vaccine Cartel GAVI
- 4 Trust Stamp's Evergreen Hash
- 5 Digital Identification Program ID2020

The Bill Gates' funded program that will create your digital identity based upon your vaccination history is coming together in warp speed! The creativity of Lucifer is simply amazing and ingenious. At the close of this chapter, I will include the links to the previous eleven chapters and five appendixes to this entire series, which I began six years ago. It covers "666" from its inception origin in Babylon up to the present: 628 pages plus this chapter. I put it onto an eBook CD two years ago; however, knowing there would be a new chapter or two needed to wrap up the ubiquitous "666". I have had unfinished sketches and drawings on my work table for the past two years, laying there waiting for the missing pieces and links which tie this Satanic master plan from hell for the enslavement altogether. It's here!

I have been following the actions of Bill and Melinda Gates for three decades; however, it was really the appearance of Melinda Gates on the grand stage of celebrity humanitarianism that honed me in on this like a heat-seeking 'Stinger' missile. She was wearing the upside-down cross on mainstream television as if to broadcast to the world she was a Satan worshipper. I probably would have missed it had it not been for my close attention to the jewelry worn by politicians and celebrities showing their worship deities.

Melinda Gates claims to be a Roman Catholic. Their children were raised Roman Catholic. An interesting fact is that the Gates' children were never vaccinated. That is a bit odd for the king of vaccines, but true nonetheless. That very odd fact was shared by the former family physician at a medical conference years ago. The faux Christians are really Luciferians!

They literally worship Satan! The necklace she was wearing is one worn by Satanists to mock the Crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ. Biblically illiterate people, mainly Catholics, will tell you that are all due to Peter being crucified upside down. There is NO Scripture to substantiate that claim whatsoever, and it is just another religious myth. The Roman Catholics use it thinking that it was the cross of Peter. They also ignorantly believe Peter was the first pope. That simply is false and can be proven wrong by both religious and secular history.

Microsoft Corporation, 1978

This all Jewish Microsoft team from 1978 was brought together and organized by elite Jews to take total control of all operating system software worldwide. Dixon said allowing non-Jews to take control of the preferred system would jeopardize the Jews millennium-long run of controlling intellectual properties, and thus the minds of the masses.

Bill Gates remains a crypto-Jew because his father recognized Jews are simply in control of too many mega-corporations, banks and industries in America and abroad, and was worried that if Bill Gates true identity as a Jew were ever to be revealed, it would put over the edge the fact that Jews own everything of value in America.

Melinda Gates has appeared in numerous appearances with Bill and on at least three occasions on NBC's morning 'TODAY' Show pleading her case for a global vaccine while wearing an upside-down Cross. TODAY's Savannah Guthrie spoke exclusively to Melinda Gates, who is working to address the pandemic through the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. She was critical of the Trump administration for its response to the crisis: "We haven't had leadership at the national level ... its chaos." This all while wearing a very the strange looking upside-down inverted cross around her neck. New World Order people sport their hidden beliefs by wearing lapel pins and decorative jewelry like broaches and even the upside-down cross neckless. They are not that different from us Bible-believing Christians, who acknowledge our faith by jewelry and lapel pins.

Roman Catholic Melinda Gates in an interview this past May on the morning NBC "TODAY" Show pushing hard the agenda for a global Covid-19 vaccine was wearing a bright and shiny silver upside-down cross around her neck.

We actually presently know of the genocidal inclinations of the Jews from their own ancient Talmudic writings: fairly well hidden from the eyes of Gentiles for thousands of years till the advent of the internet clearly revealed the Jewish ill-intention towards all Gentiles.

Symbolism is most important to groups like the Freemasons, Illuminati, the New World Order and others, as they love to flash you signs of how much smarter they are than you and I are. Recently, during the White House daily virus report, someone caught Dr. Anthony Fauci flashing the satanic horn sign to a reporter as the press briefing was ending (picture below). They love to flaunt their true agenda right in our faces, and dare us to figure it out. Who likes to wear inverted crosses? Satanists, pagans, witches, warlocks, New Agers, Zionist faux Jews, and including most people in Hollywood...you get the idea. Even more curiously, both Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the NIAD and Dr.

Robert Redfield of the CDC are both Jesuit coadjutors. Satan's soldiers can be found almost anywhere in the U.S. government. Pope Francis has a throne chair with an upside-down cross opening in the chair's design form. Rome hijacked Christianity in the mid-fourth century A.D., not long after Emperor Constantine legalized Christianity.

“Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us: for it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree:” -(Galatians 3:13)

The early First Century Christians never used the cross as a sign or symbol for anything, Why so? Simply because it was the instrument of the torturous death of Jesus of Nazareth. The cross as an iconic symbol would not appear until biblical Christianity was hijacked by the Romans around 325 A.D. under the Emperor Constantine. From that point on you see crosses on everything as Rome infused paganism with Christianity. The Bible tells us that the cross is the sign of a curse, and cursed people hang on them. No one in their right minds who believed the Bible would want the sign of a curse hanging around their own necks, much less wearing an upside-down cross like the pagans and Melinda Gates do.

But ask yourself as to why Melinda Gates chose to wear an upside-down cross on national television at least three specific times. We know she went to Catholic school, and that she and Bill have raised their children as Catholics. But when you look at the millions of dollars they give to Planned Parenthood, an organization that exists to slaughter children in the womb, exactly what kind of Catholic she is gets a little murky, to say the least. Abortion is the term to describe infant and child sacrifice of old. The Gate family legacy has a century of eugenics and depopulation linked to that name. Above is another photo of Melinda Gates and the upside-down cross.

The Roman Catholic Church, what I like to call counterfeit Christianity, loves weird occult and pagan symbolism. The huge Vatican Audience Hall is shaped exactly like a giant snake, and has the freakiest, most nastiest-looking statue right behind where the pope sits. Occult symbolism pervades the Vatican to a very high degree. Melinda Gates is a Catholic, you do the math. We will now turn to the pieces that begin to come together in this insidious “Mark” of the Beast; coming together before our very eyes. Bill Gates loves to show off his creation, even in his interviews he is as eager as a kid to show off his work. His ego and vanity simply bubbles all over himself.

The Microsoft billionaire has some skeletons being exposed in an employee law suit. Bill Gates Faces Lawsuit For Forcing Staff To Watch Child Abuse. Microsoft staff were forced to view footage of abuse of children being raped and murdered, according to a lawsuit filed against Bill Gates. A new lawsuit has been filed against Microsoft founder Bill Gates after it emerged that Microsoft staff were forced to view photos and videos of sexual assaults, brutality, rape, and murder of children.

It emerged that the staff members suffered from severe post-traumatic stress following viewing the content. Two former Microsoft employees and their families filed the complaint citing the content as “inhumane and disgusting content”, they also complained of a huge psychological impact has caused the moderators to “breakdown” when using a computer.

Ben Wells, the attorney who filed the suit in Washington state said: “It’s bad enough just to see a child get sexually molested. Then there are murders. Unspeakable things are done to these children.” The UK ‘Guardian’ reports: If the suit prevails, it could have ramifications for corporations across the industry, and Wells said he hopes the case inspires others to speak out about poor working conditions.

A Microsoft spokesperson said in a statement that the company “disagrees” with the claims in the suit and “takes seriously its responsibility to remove and report imagery of child sexual exploitation and abuse being shared on its services, as well as the health and resiliency of the employees who do this important work”.

Plaintiffs Henry Soto and Greg Blauert both worked on the online safety team, which is responsible for complying with legislation passed in 2008 requiring tech companies to report child abuse images and other crimes. Many child pornographers and pedophiles have been subsequently arrested and prosecuted for child porn on their computers.

Microsoft did not warn the workers about the dangers of this line of work and the potential for “debilitating injuries”, according to the suit, which was filed in December and was publicly reported this week. When Soto was “involuntarily transferred” to the unit in 2008, he had “God-like” status, which meant he could view any customer’s communications, the suit said.

His job involved assisting law enforcement in breaking up “crime rings” and “violent groups” and required him to view “many thousands of photographs and videos” of violence and brutality.

“Many people simply cannot imagine what Mr. Soto had to view on a daily basis as most people do not understand how horrible and inhumane the worst people in the world can be,” his lawyers wrote. Blauert, who was hired as a full-time employee in 2012, was also required to “review thousands of images of child pornography, adult pornography and bestiality that graphically depicted the violence and depravity of the perpetrators.”

Although Microsoft created a “wellness program” and offered a counselor, the services were insufficient and ineffective and the company failed to help the workers understand the “vicarious trauma” and PTSD they were suffering, according to the suit. Program authorities advised the workers to take walks and smoke breaks and suggested Blauert play video games to manage his symptoms, the complaint said. Later, however, his supervisors allegedly gave him a poor evaluation for “lack of production and too much time playing video games”.

The level of evil and hubris coming from the Gates duo is natural considering the levels of wealth and power that western society has allowed to concentrate in the hands of a few. We are at a problematic crossroads where the political faction that would seem more inclined to be opposed to the raw concentration of wealth under market norms, the so-called left, is in some kind of fog of awe over the philanthropy mixed with social-democratic talking points that the Gates duo occasionally spew. Meanwhile, conservatives who more openly have supported the politics of wealth concentration are the group most able to see where that has so problematically led.

Snopes and social media continue to run media interference for Melinda Gates after she appeared on television on the weekend of May 8th wearing a necklace with an upside down cross, long known to be a satanic symbol. Apologist for oligarchy and empire, Snopes, fact checked the claim with their usual lack of coherency and standards. Snopes cannot be trusted, nor can the fact checking agencies used by social media. This much is clear. These are being used as excuses to silence dissent and expose the plans and plots of the satanic ruling elite. People of conscience must realize they cannot take a back-seat and merely observe events, but must increasingly take an active role in bringing Gates et al to justice.

The self-anointed leaders of the world have decided that world population reduction down to half a billion to a billion people is on the agenda's front burner. Problem is that this means 7 billion or so people will have to die. Some of those commoners just might decide to rebel rather than die to make life better for billionaires. Considering that Gates invested over $20 billion in the quintessential 'evil food corporation' Monsanto, you can see why there are suspicions. Bill Gates owns 500,000 shares of Monsanto stock.

The extent of his shadowy charitable behavior extends further. He's been accused of 'donating' vast sums of money to companies that directly benefit himself. On top of all of that, the man who postures himself as a savior to vulnerable communities has undeniably exploited them for profit. Microsoft uses cheap prison labor to manufacture some of its products. Bill Gates is directly benefiting from what's commonly seen as a modern loophole to human slavery.

While it's unclear if Bill Gates is a criminal mastermind hell bent on taking over the planet, he's quite certainly not the superhero he wants the world to see. The fact is Bill Gates says depopulation via vaccine so many times in his speeches it's scary. No one is putting words in his mouth and at that his wife sporting a satanic cross in her interview on 20/20 for all to see.

The French Revolution had causes -starvation of the poor and John Law's hyperinflation – but it also had a flashpoint – Marie Antoinette's "Let them eat cake."

I would like to think of our flash point might be that smirk Bill Gates makes when he said, "We have to prepare for the next one (pandemic virus). That will get their attention this time." At that he giggles and gets all happy when talking about deaths. Yeah it's visually noticeable.

Business owner Clay Clark was responding to President Donald Trump's claim that he wants public indoctrination (schools) centers reopened so children can go to school and that there will be ramifications if they don't. Clark began by agreeing that schools should be opened, then said that America should stop listening to Dr. Anthony Fauci. That's when he ended up tearing into Bill Gates.

Clay Clark is the Host of the ThriveTime Radio Show and Founder of Thrive15.com a highly respected Business School as seen on Forbes, Bloomberg, YahooFinance, etc.

He is also U.S. SBA Entrepreneur of the Year, a Contributor for Entrepreneur Magazine, and is an investor and co-owner of several multi-million dollar companies around the world.

Clark is a highly respected Oklahoma based Business Coaching Group that has built 13 multi-million dollar companies that generate over $2 Billion dollars in revenue. He's also a fastidious researcher who has investigated the origins of who has pushed the incorrect and dangerous narrative of 2.2 Million people dying.

"They are once again messing with the numbers to, once again, cause mass hysteria. The hard data simply does not call for this incredible overreach by the government" says Clark. However, in this brief interview, in which the host looks like she is completely oblivious to what he is saying, Clark tears into Gates via his Fauci comment. As soon as he referenced Fauci, he pointed out that Fauci has been funded by Bill and Melinda Gates.

He then added, "Jeffrey Epstein is not a good man and Bill Gates spent a lot of time with Mr. Jeffrey Epstein. So, I don't think we should be listening to a pedophile for how to treat our kids, period."

"And we shouldn't be listening to people who spend time with pedophiles as it relates to our kids," he continued. "If Bill Gates wanted to watch my kids as a babysitter, I wouldn't let him do it. I'm certainly not going to use a vaccine he recommends, and Bill Gates has asked Dr. Fauci to serve on his board of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. So, stop listening to Bill Gates and Dr. Fauci. They're both corrupt individuals and Bill Gates hangs out with pedophiles consistently."

"Why would you listen to a pedophile about what to do with your kids?" Clark asked.

Indeed, why would anyone listen to any of the corrupt bunch in Washington, DC? About anything?

More recently, Clark was also invited back to 'Newsman' and wants to see the country reopened and out from under the thumb of tyranny so much that he declared, "I'd rather have my own kids get Covid-19 than shut down the economy again. We cannot let this happen. Our country just can't take it. We must shutdown the shutdown!"

I certainly agree with Mr. Clark, but it begs the question, who has been putting Dr. Fauci front and center during all this Covid-19 nonsense? President Donald Trump? Why is there no responsibility on his part for letting Fauci be the man to set policy? On July 20th, 2020, a report in the media stated that President Trump was bringing back his Virus taskforce again to the Presidential Press briefings. For whatever his reasons are, this is not a good indicator the President has broken from his Drs. Fauci, Berx, and Redfield team! It is further evidence that President Trump is aligned with Gates and GAVI, and their agenda to vaccinate the world with an electronic device, call it what you want!

Bill Gates reportedly had a much closer relationship with Jeffrey Epstein than he previously admitted and once called the billionaire pedophile's lifestyle "intriguing." Is it possible that Bill Gates' mother, Mary Maxwell Gates is a relative of Robert Maxwell, the father of Jeffrey Epstein's girlfriend Ghislaine Maxwell. Perhaps it is a coincidence but I move on. I have not had time to investigate this interesting possibility.

The world's second-wealthiest man had "numerous" meetings with Epstein, including at least three at his opulent Manhattan townhouse, and considered partnering with the pervy mogul in a charitable fundraising plan that could have netted Epstein $30 million in fees, the 'New York Times' reported Saturday. More damning, Gates first struck up his personal and business relationship with Epstein in 2011, when he [Epstein] was already a convicted pedophile.

After meeting Epstein for the first time in a late night gabfest at the mansion, Gates wrote a cringe-worthy email to colleagues. "His lifestyle is very different and kind of intriguing although it would not work for me," Gates wrote, according to the 'Times'.

Perhaps that smirk can launch a Global Insurrection – Commoners vs Uber Billionaires. The Covid-19 virus manmade in a lab. This is according to Dr. Luc Montanier who won the Nobel Prize for Medicine in 2008. Dr. Francis Boyle who drafted the US Biological Weapons Act agreed – Covid-19 was made in a lab.

The Spike protein was engineered from SARS into Covid. This allows it to enter human cells. 4 new sequences were engineered into Covid from the HIV virus including the GP 41 envelope which is the key for HIV to infect human bodies. We might not have learned of this "insert" into the Covid-19 version of SARS. Withholding information is the essence of tyranny while controlling the flow of information is the tool of dictatorship!

In fact we know Covid's history. It began in a lab at the University of North Carolina but because it violated U.S. law and there was a great need for plausible deniability the work was shifted to Wuhan China. That now infamous lab received a $3.7 million grant in 2014 from Dr. Fauci, the NIH and President Obama to transform it into a completed bioweapon; and doubled to $7.4 million.

Suppose a second virus is released after a disastrous Super Duper Wuhan Virus Vaccine is forced upon us who kills and maims millions before it is stopped. Bill Gates wants to skip animal testing for the Covid vaccine. And he wants to go past normal vaccine techniques to a never been done before experiment with messenger RNA. We have heard press releases lately saying that vaccine test subjects are developing antibodies very rapidly. Dr. Fauci has publicly stated it takes seven years to produce a workable vaccine, but he is pushing the Moderna vaccine due in the fall of 2020. Hard to figure his thinking, well maybe not so hard!

That does not sound like Good News to anyone familiar with what happened to the SARS vaccine. It's an effect called Enhancement where a vaccine develops antibodies and then the test subject comes into contact with the wild virus. And then the victim of experimental science gets really sick and dies or risk permanent injury. My guess knowing what we know that the damage would be a lifelong disability involving the lungs and/or the heart.

This vaccine would only reluctantly be accepted by the skeptical public after another year of lockdowns and travel restrictions as described by Bill Gates. The American economy lost 50 million jobs due to the fear porn generated by the corporate media. The same media and medical establishment has downplayed the efficacy of hydroxychloroquine and zinc to cure Covid-19 in its early stages. These are the same people playing fast and loose with death certificates writing down murders, suicides, drug overdoses, motorcycle and auto accidents as Covid-19.

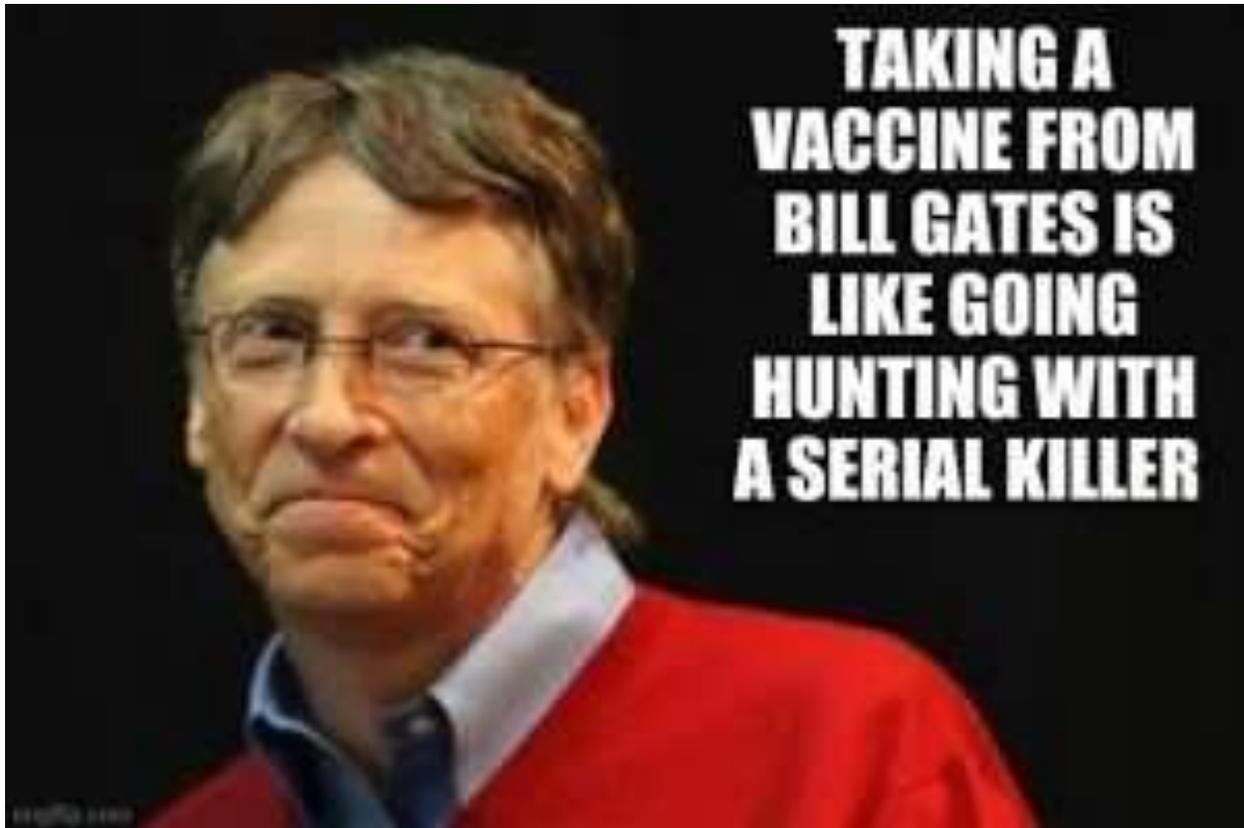

Most of these deaths were terminally ill patients who died from heart disease, COPD, cancer and renal failure. They died with Covid but not from it. And many might not have had the Covid virus. The American Center for Hospital Statistics sent out letters to doctors, clinics and hospitals demanding that deaths where the patient died from any known cause but had tested positive for Covid was written down as U07.1 Covid. If there were no test, but the patient had either the flu or a cough the classification was to be U07.2 Covid. U07.2 deaths outnumber U07.1 deaths by 2 to 1.

The economic pressure on the commoners will be severe to end the lockdowns after the November U.S. elections because you can print tens of trillions of dollars, pounds euros and yen for years but there will be consequences. My calculation is that when, not if, the U.S. Dollar dies, American wages and pensions will be permanently cut by 60%. For example, $30 an hour would become $12 and $20 an hour would become $8. Not much to support a family. That would force the majority of people worldwide to accept an experimental vaccine from Bill Gates. I suspect that this unproven vaccine will end badly but somehow most politicians and Bill Gates will have avoided it.

Soon after that I expect a second lab grown virus will be released. It will be far more devastating physically. Mr. Gates has said it will come and as Bill Gates said, “It will get their attention.” In this chapter of what leads us to how the ID2020 will be interconnected in a system that will virtually enslave every man, woman, and child on the planet. In this chapter, I am focusing on the network of people, NGO’s, and public-private partnerships and how they are used to fit the vaccine narrative . This provides the reader with the flavor of the dynamics at play bringing about the “Mark” of the Beast.

In the next chapter we will be looking at the technological apparatus side that integrates the many puzzle pieces that are becoming visible to what the Bible speaks to in the book of Revelation.

The economic damage from the lockdowns and the universal money printing will have created a worldwide hyperinflation which will actually be far worse than the Weimar Republic of 1923 due to the hundreds of millions killed and maimed by the Covid-19 virus, the Super Duper Wuhan Virus Vaccine and that second lab grown virus that made Bill Gates smirk when he said: “It will get their attention.” Prophetic inference maybe!

An economic collapse of that magnitude would kill billions of people by starvation and violence. But the self-appointed world leaders would have accomplished their goal at least in part after the first 3 billion Commoners die.

The Bill Gates global health empire promises more empire and less public health. Behind a veil of corporate media PR, the Gates Foundation has served as a vehicle for Western capital while exploiting the Global South as a human laboratory. The pandemic will likely intensify this disturbing agenda. President Donald Trump's announcement earlier in July of a U.S. withdrawal from the World Health Organization (WHO) set into motion a process that will have a dramatic impact on the future of global public health policy – and on the fortunes of one of the world's richest people.

The US abandonment of the WHO means that the organization's second largest financial contributor, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, is soon to become its top donor, giving the non-governmental international empire unparalleled influence over one the world's most important multilateral organizations.

Bill Gates has achieved a hero-like status during the pandemic. The 'Washington Post' has called him a "champion of science-backed solutions," while the 'New York Times' recently hailed him as "the most interesting man in the world." Gates is also the star of a hit Netflix docu-series, "Pandemic: How to Prevent an Outbreak," which was released just weeks before, almost simultaneously when Covid hit the U.S., and produced by a 'New York Times' correspondent, Sheri Fink, who previously worked at three Gates-funded organizations (Pro Publica, the New America Foundation, and the International Medical Corps). All very well-orchestrated and so timely!

The tidal wave of mainstream media praise for Gates during the Covid-19 era has meant that scrutiny of the billionaire and his machinations is increasingly isolated on the far right of the political spectrum, where it can be dismissed by progressives as the conspiratorial ravings of Trumpists and Q-Anon quacks.

But beyond the public relations bonanza about Gates lays a disturbing history that should raise concerns about whether his foundation's plans for resolving the pandemic will benefit the global public as much as it expands and entrenches its power over international institutions.

The Gates Foundation has already effectively privatized the international body charged with creating health policy, transforming it into a vehicle for corporate dominance. It has facilitated the dumping of toxic products onto the people of the Global South, and even used the world's poor as guinea pigs for drug experiments. The foundation's influence over public health policy is practically contingent on ensuring that safety regulations and other government functions are weak enough to be circumvented. It therefore operates against the independence of nation states and as a vehicle for Western capital.

"Because of the Gates Foundation, I have watched government after government fall in its sovereignty," Dr. Vandana Shiva, a scholar and founder of the India-based Research Foundation for Science, Technology and Ecology, told The 'Grayzone'.

The Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation is the largest private foundation on Earth, reporting over $51 billion in assets at the end of 2019. Bill Gates says his Foundation spends a majority of its resources "reducing deaths from infectious diseases," and through his philanthropy, he seems to have bought a name for himself as an infectious disease expert. And all that without so much as taking a class in basic biology.

Corporate media rolled out the red carpet for Gates as he advised the world on how to handle the Covid outbreak. During just the month of April, while the virus was severely impacting the U.S., he was hosted by CNN, CNBC, Fox, PBS, BBC, CBS, MSNBC, The Daily Show and The Ellen Show. On the BBC, Gates described himself as a "health expert," despite his lack of a college degree in medicine or any other field.

The billionaire's media appearances are shot through with a single, undeniable theme: "If global leaders listened to Gates, the world would be better equipped to fight the pandemic." As the fashion magazine 'Vogue' asked, "Why Isn't Bill Gates Running the Coronavirus Task Force?" Maybe he really is the power behind the name here!

So what does a Gates-led Covid response look like?

The Ultimate Solution

According to Bill Gates, creating and distributing a Covid vaccine for everyone on Earth is “the ultimate solution” to the outbreak. Gates Foundation CEO Mark Suzman echoed these sentiments, proclaiming that “a successful vaccine has to be made available for 7 billion people.” What about the remaining half billion or so, could his words be a Freudian slip of the tongue?

Recently, on CNN, the wife of Bill Gates the co-director of his foundation, Melinda Gates, lamented that she was “kept up at night” worrying about vulnerable populations in Africa and how unprepared they were for this virus. More recently, she told ‘TIME’ Magazine that in the U.S., black people should get the vaccine first. How crass of Melinda Gates in such a statement relative to its in-appropriate timing.

Bringing a life-saving vaccine to vulnerable black populations in Africa and the U.S., and then to everyone around the world seems noble, and Bill Gates is certainly putting his money where his mouth is. In March, he stepped down from his position on the board of directors at Microsoft and is apparently “now spending the predominant amount of his time on the pandemic.” Meeting the goals of the Georgia Guide Stones demands a full-time CEO!

The Gates Foundation, the “biggest funder of vaccines in the world,” has already directly donated more than $300 million towards the global response to Covid. This includes backing vaccine trials by companies like Inovio Pharmaceuticals, AstraZeneca and Moderna Inc., all of which are being described as frontrunners in the race to develop a Covid vaccine. The Foundation also co-founded and funds the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness (CEPI), which is investing up to $480 million in “a wide range of vaccine candidates and platform technologies.”

Even so, there might be cause for skepticism when examining the reality of a Gates-led global vaccination effort.

Conflicts of Interest

As the second richest person on Earth, Bill Gates has no reason to crave money. This is a common response to claims that Gates’ philanthropy isn’t motivated solely by the kindness of his heart. But despite these frequent characterizations of Gates “giving away” his fortune, his net worth has actually doubled in the last two decades. This comes from donating and giving grants in which the Gates Foundation own sizeable assets in investment in those companies such as Monsanto, of which Bill Gates owns 500,000 shares of the GMO big-agra firm.

At the same time, strong evidence suggests that the Gates Foundation functions as a Trojan horse for Western corporations which, of course, have no goal greater than an increased bottom line; After all, they are in business to earn profits for the shareholders.

Consider the revolving door between the Gates Foundation and Big Pharma. Former Director of Vaccine Development at the Foundation and current CEO of the Bill & Melinda Gates Medical Research Institute Penny Heaton hails from drug kingpins Merck and Novartis. The Foundation's President of Global Health, Trevor Mundel, served in leadership positions at both Novartis and Pfizer. His predecessor, Tachi Yamada, was previously a top executive at GlaxoSmithKline (GSK). Kate James, worked at GSK for almost 10 years, then became the Foundation's Chief Communications Officer. The examples are almost endless.

Moreover, the Gates Foundation invests in these corporations directly. Since shortly after its founding, it has owned stakes in several drug companies. A recent investigation by 'The Nation' revealed that the Foundation currently holds corporate stocks and bonds in drug companies like Merck, GSK, Eli Lilly, Pfizer, Novartis, and Sanofi. The Foundation's website even candidly declares a mission to pursue "mutually beneficial opportunities" with vaccine manufacturers.

Gates Buys The World Health Organization

The WHO relies on two streams of revenue. One comes in the form of Assessed Contributions, or obligatory funding from UN member states which is assessed through population and income. The second is Voluntary Contributions, which can be earmarked for specific causes. Voluntary earmarked contributions account for more than 80% of the current WHO budget. In other words, most of the WHO's money comes with strings attached.

As Dr. David Legge, Public Health Scholar Emeritus at the School of Public Health at La Trobe University in Melbourne, told The 'Grayzone', "Obligatory contributions by nation states really only covers the cost of administration. It doesn't cover any of the project costs, which means that all project funding is dependent on donors. [And] virtually all donor money is totally earmarked to highly specific projects that the donors want to fund."

Through these voluntary contributions, the WHO took in over $70 million from the pharmaceutical industry in 2018 (the last year for which complete data is available). Meanwhile, the Gates Foundation has provided Big Pharma with the perfect vehicle for influencing the WHO. I think you have heard of the expression, "you scratch my back and I will scratch your back!"

In 2018 alone, the foundation gave $237.8 million to the WHO, making it the second largest contributor after the U.S. The foundation also funds the WHO indirectly through Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunizations (GAVI), a "public-private partnership" that facilitates bulk sales of vaccines to poor countries. GAVI is the second largest non-state funder of the WHO (after the Gates Foundation), and gave $158.5 million to the WHO in 2018. So you can see the failed vaccines are sold at clearance sale prices in the Third World nations!

During the late 1990's, Bill Gates sponsored the meetings that led to the creation of GAVI, establishing it up with $750 million in seed money. To date, the Foundation has given GAVI over $4.1 billion, accounting for close to 20% of GAVI funds. It also occupies a permanent seat on the GAVI board. GAVI itself discloses that the Gates

Foundation “plays both a technical and financial role in [its] efforts to shape vaccine markets.”

Citing GAVI as an example, Global Health Watch explained that “other global health actors are accountable to the Gates Foundation, but not the other way round.”

If the Foundation’s and GAVI’s contributions are combined, they outweigh the U.S. government’s contributions, making the Gates Foundation the unofficial top sponsor of the WHO, even before the Trump Administration’s recent move to withdraw from the organization.

To sociologist Allison Katz, who worked for 18 years in the WHO headquarters, the WHO “has become a victim of neoliberal globalization.” Katz wrote an open letter to then WHO Director General Margaret Chan in 2007, criticizing public bodies that “go begging to the private sector [and] to the foundations of celebrity ‘philanthropists’ with diverse agendas, from industry.”

To be sure, the WHO’s close financial relationship with a private organization is only a problem to the extent that it relies on quid pro quo donations. And that seems to be exactly what is taking place.

Because most of both the Foundation’s contributions to the WHO are earmarked, the WHO doesn’t decide how these funds are spent – the Gates Foundation does. For example, the WHO program that receives the most money is its polio eradication program, because the Gates Foundation earmarks most of its contributions for polio.

Additionally, the sheer magnitude of the Foundation’s financial contributions have made Bill Gates an unofficial – albeit unelected – leader at the organization. That’s why the World Health Assembly that sets the WHO agenda adopted a “Global Vaccine Plan” in 2012 that was co-authored by none other than the Gates Foundation.

According to Dr. David Legge, Scholar Emeritus at the School of Public Health at La Trobe University in Melbourne, Gates’ financial “donations” are actually a mechanism for agenda setting. Legge told The ‘Grayzone’ that “his massive contributions totally distort the kind of budget priorities that the World Health Assembly would wish to see.”

According to Foreign Affairs, “few policy initiatives or normative standards set by the WHO are announced before they have been casually, unofficially vetted by Gates Foundation staff.” Or, as other sources told Politico in 2017, “Gates’ priorities have become the WHO’s.” It does not take long to see how Gates philanthropy is leveraged.

In an interview with Global Health Watch, one senior health policy officer from a large NGO put it this way: “The people at WHO seem to have gone crazy. It’s ‘yes sir’, ‘yes sir’, to Gates on everything.”

In 2007, Chief of the WHO Malaria Program Dr. Arata Kochi warned of the Gates Foundation's financial dominance, arguing that its money could have "far reaching, largely unintended consequences."

Seven years later, the organization's then-Director General Margaret Chan noted that because the WHO's budget is highly earmarked, it is "driven by what [she calls] donor interests."

When Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus became WHO Director General in 2017, Gates's influence came under fire again, as Tedros was previously on the board of two organizations Gates founded, provided seed money for, and continues to fund to this day: GAVI and The Global Fund, where Tedros was Board Chair.

Another mechanism the Gates Foundation employs to influence the WHO is the Strategic Advisory Group of Experts (SAGE), the principal advisory group to the WHO for vaccines. SAGE is a board of fifteen people, legally required to disclose any possible conflicts of interest.

During a recent virtual meeting, half of the board's members who did so listed Gates Foundation connections as possible conflicts of interests.

The Foundation's influence in the international health arena goes well beyond the WHO. A 2017 analysis of 23 global health partnerships revealed that seven relied entirely on Gates Foundation funding and another nine listed the Foundation as its top donor.

As the UK-based NGO Global Justice Now noted, "the Foundation's influence is so pervasive that many actors in international development which would otherwise critique the policy and practice of the Foundation are unable to speak out independently as a result of its funding and patronage."

"The World Bank and the IMF look like midgets in front of the Gates Foundation, in terms of power and influence," Dr. Vandana Shiva remarked to The 'Grayzone'.

Today, Tedros, the first WHO Director General who is not a medical doctor, can be found tweeting praise for Bill Gates' op-eds.

The Foundation has also directed its wealth towards influencing news coverage of global health policy – and to perhaps suppress criticism of its more unsavory activities as well. It has donated millions to major media outlets, including NPR, PBS, ABC, BBC, Al Jazeera, The 'Daily Telegraph', 'The Financial Times', 'Univision', and The 'Guardian'. In fact, The 'Guardian's' entire 'Global Development' section was made possible through a partnership with the Gates Foundation.

In 2008, the Communications Chief for 'PBS NewsHour' Rob Flynn explained, "there are not a heck of a lot of things you could touch in global health these days that would not have some kind of Gates tentacle." This was around the time when the Foundation gave the 'NewsHour' $3.5 million to establish a dedicated production unit to report on important global health issues.

Mickey Huff, the president of the Media Freedom Foundation, told The 'Grayzone' that the Gates Foundation exerts influence in a way that is typical for foundations working through PR firms, grants, and endowments of professors. "In short," Huff said, "Edward Bernays would be proud of the achievements of this type of propaganda."

It is no wonder glowing coverage of the foundation is so common in mainstream media, or that its more unsavory activities in the Global South get so little attention.

Deadly Double Standards

The Gates Foundation has helped engineer global health policy for poor countries for over twenty years, working mainly in Africa and South Asia. Its close relationship with the drug industry seems to have colored that work.

While the Foundation's mission statement reads, "we see equal value in all lives," an exploration of this recent history proves otherwise. The Foundation appears to see the global south as both a dumping ground for drugs deemed too unsafe for the developed world, and a testing ground for drugs not yet determined to be safe enough for the developed world.

The so-called “flagship of Bill Gates’ / WHO African vaccine program” is the diphtheria tetanus pertussis (DTP) vaccine. It’s a bundle of three immunization shots given to virtually every child on the African continent, but not currently administered in the U.S. nor in most other developed nations.

As far back as 1977, a study published by British medical professionals in ‘The Lancet’ established that the risks of the whole-cell pertussis jab (used in the DTP vaccine) are greater than the risks associated with contracting wild pertussis. After mounting evidence linking the drug to brain damage, seizures and even death, the U.S. and other Western countries phased it out in the 1990s and replaced it with a safer version (called DTaP) that did not contain the whole pertussis cell.

However, African nations are still being financially incentivized to continue using the out-of-date, deeply dangerous DTP vaccine, with GAVI making DTP a priority for African children. Gates’ money buys access to inject his vaccines in African children!

Shockingly, a 2017 study funded by the Danish government concluded that more African children were dying at the hands of the deadly DTP vaccine than by the diseases it prevented. The researchers examined data from Guinea Bissau and concluded that boys were dying at almost quadruple (3.93) the rate of those who had not received the shot, while girls suffered almost 10 times (9.98) the death rate.

Yet these staggering numbers have not stopped the Gates Foundation from spending millions annually to push the DTP vaccine onto African healthcare systems.

There is perhaps no more famous element of the Gates Foundation’s work than its polio eradication effort. Yet once again, the polio drugs the Western world uses and the drugs given to the Global South are dramatically different.

The Foundation has spent over $1 billion distributing an oral polio vaccine (OPV) that contains a live polio virus to African and Asian countries. This live virus can replicate inside a child’s intestine and spread in places with poor sanitation and plumbing. That means people can contract the virus from the vaccine.

According to a 2017 study by University of California San Francisco and Tel Aviv University, the polio virus used in the OPV has done just that in at least two dozen cases the researchers examined – it rapidly regained its strength and started spreading on its own.

In recent years, more children have been paralyzed by the vaccine strain of the virus in OPV than by wild polio. In an interview with NPR, Professor of Microbiology Raul Andino said, “It’s actually an interesting conundrum. The very tool you are using for polio eradication is causing the problem.”

Back in 2000, the U.S. halted its use of the OPV. But in the developing world, the Gates Foundation uses its instruments of influence to ensure governments continue administering it.

Polio outbreaks in both the Philippines and the Congo are the result of the OPV. In 2005, Oxford's Clinical Infectious Diseases Periodical contended that polio outbreaks in China, Egypt, Haiti and Madagascar were also caused by the OPV, declaring that "the time is coming when the only cause of polio is likely to be the vaccine used to prevent it."

A few years later, the same periodical, while arguing that developing countries should shift to the Inactive Polio Vaccine (IPV) the U.S. uses, wrote that the OPV is not only giving kids' polio, but also "seems to be ineffective in stopping polio transmission" to begin with.

As the 'British Medical Journal' reported in 2012, "the most recent mass polio vaccination programs [in India], fueled by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, resulted in increased cases [of polio]."

According to doctors in India, the OPV is also causing outbreaks of another disease called non-polio acute flaccid paralysis (NPAFP). After an epidemic of NPAFP paralyzed 490,000 children between 2000 and 2017, the doctors published a report suggesting that "the increase in NPAFP and the later decrease in such cases was indeed an adverse effect of the [WHO's] polio immunization program."

NPAFP is "clinically indistinguishable from polio but twice as deadly." Keith Van Haren, Child Neurologist at the Stanford School of Medicine explains that, "it actually looks just like polio, but that term really freaks out the public-health people."

In 2012, the 'British Medical Journal' wryly noted that polio eradication in India "has been achieved by renaming the disease." That same year, the 'Indian Journal of Medical Ethics' observed both vaccine-derived polio outbreaks and the massive increase in NPAFP. It likened eradication efforts in India to the occupation of Iraq, stating:

"When the U.S. was badly mired in Iraq in 2005, Joe Galloway suggested that the U.S. must simply declare victory, and then exit. Perhaps the time is right for such an honorable strategy with regard to polio eradication."

However, the Gates Foundation and the WHO have stayed the course, distributing the OPV in countries including Nigeria, Pakistan, and Afghanistan, where the Foundation says the WHO is now providing "unprecedented levels of technical assistance" for polio vaccination campaigns.

In Syria, the Gates-backed GAVI pledged $25 million for polio immunization in 2016. A year later, the WHO reported that 58 children in Syria had been paralyzed by the vaccine-derived form of the virus.

Despite the scientific consensus against the OPV, and the opposition to such programs in the target countries, OPV remains administered in Africa, the Middle East and South Asia as part of “aid” programs, creating windfall profits for pharmaceutical giants who may not have been able to sell their products elsewhere.

With drugs discarded by the West, an illusion of choice for African women the Foundation’s practice of pushing dangerous drugs onto health systems of the global south is not limited to vaccines. It also helps distribute long acting, reversible contraceptives (LARCs).

Melinda Gates often refers to LARCs as a way to empower women of impoverished countries and give them more control over their lives. However, some of these LARCs have had adverse effects, and the distribution of the products without informed consent offers women little self-determination.

One example is Norplant, a contraceptive implant manufactured by Schering (now Bayer) that can prevent pregnancy for up to five years. It was yanked from the U.S. market in 2002 after more than 50,000 women filed lawsuits against the company and the doctors who prescribed it. 70 of those class action suits related to side effects like depression, extreme nausea, scalp-hair loss, ovarian cysts, migraines, and excessive bleeding.

(A human development website called Degrees, which was bankrolled by the Gates Foundation, alleges that Norplant “never gained much traction globally” because inserting it and removing it “proved cumbersome.”).

Slightly modified and rebranded as Jadelle, the dangerous drug was promoted in Africa by the Gates Foundation in conjunction with USAID and EngenderHealth. Formerly named The Sterilization League for Human Betterment, EngenderHealth’s original mission, inspired by the racist pseudoscience of eugenics, was to “improve the biological stock of the human race.” Jadelle is not approved by the FDA for use in the U.S.

Then there’s Pfizer’s Depo-Provera, an injectable contraceptive used in several African and Asian countries. The Gates Foundation and USAID have collaborated again to fund this drug’s distribution and introduce it into the healthcare systems of countries including Uganda, Burkina Faso, Nigeria, Niger, Senegal, Bangladesh, and India.

In 2012, Melinda Gates promised to supply contraceptives like Depo-Provera, which cost between $120 – $300 a year, to at least 120 million women by 2020. In 2017, Melinda Gates authored an article on Medium reporting that she and her partners were on track to keeping that promise, and pledging $375 million in additional funds to do so. That meant that Pfizer made between $15 and $36 billion through this program.

Disturbingly, Depo-Provera's active ingredient – depot medroxyprogesterone acetate (DMPA) – has been associated with side effects like life threatening blood clots in the lungs, blindness, and breast cancer.

Pfizer's one-time use version of the drug, called Sayana Press, is intended to be administered by "community health workers." In Senegal, however, almost half of these workers had no more than a sixth grade education.

Senegal's Health Ministry was forced to change its laws so the health workers could legally distribute the drug; according to The Population Research Institute, USAID funded NGOs "strong armed the government" into this decision.

Additionally, training materials for Sayana Press did not provide information on all the side effects of DMPA, violating principles of informed consent. According to WHO guidelines, DMPA shouldn't be used by women with rheumatic disorders. But USAID funded patient screening checklists for Uganda did not instruct health workers to ask women about a history of such disorders.

Guidelines for trainers of providers of Sayana Press also don't mention that the drug has been strongly associated with bone density loss and an increased risk of bone fractures. As The Population Research Institute put it, "The FDA requires that U.S. women be informed of this fact, but African women are kept in the dark."

In 2015, seventy Indian feminist groups and scholars signed a statement protesting the regulatory approval of Depo-Provera, citing side effects like excessive bone density loss, weight gain, excessive bleeding, and depression. Their statement argued that women's organizations have consistently opposed the introduction of dangerous contraceptives like these, and that "there are risks that the women are not given enough information to make an informed choice of contraceptive method."

Despite widespread domestic opposition and the mounting evidence of negative side effects, the Gates Foundation continues working with USAID to distribute drugs like Depo-Provera. Guinea pigs in the Global South, Gates' channels of influence have also been instrumental in testing drugs on people in poor countries.

Before a drug can be sold to the public, the FDA and similar agencies in Europe mandate that a company test the drug on human subjects. The third and final phase of these tests before the drug can go to market are Phase III clinical trials, during which companies are required to give the drug to large numbers of people in controlled studies.

It's estimated that about 90 percent of drug development costs are incurred in Phase III trials. But these companies can avoid costs by conducting the trials in so-called developing nations. It would seem that black lives do not matter to drug companies!

This cost-cutting strategy has been outlined by the U.S. consulting firm McKinsey, which suggested including "emerging markets" in drug trials to reduce "the loss of significant revenues."

So it really comes as no surprise that the Gates Foundation, a McKinsey client, outwardly stated its "goal" was to help drug company's side-step safety trials and accelerate the drug approval process for pharmaceutical companies. Or, as they put it, to "refine potential interventions such as vaccine candidates before they enter costly and time consuming late-stage clinical trials."

While conducting clinical trials on the poor is financially advantageous, it can also be dangerous. Citing numerous examples of the danger, a South African newspaper once declared, "We are the guinea pigs for the drug makers."

From 2009 to 2011 Phase III clinical trials of the first malaria vaccine – funded by the Gates Foundation and manufactured by GSK – took place in seven African countries (Ghana, Kenya, Malawi, Mozambique, Burkina Faso, Gabon, and Tanzania).

In 2011, GSK's own data showed female children were dying (from any cause) at more than twice the rate of those in the control group. Children who received the vaccine also had a risk of meningitis that was 10 times higher than those who didn't. Yet the WHO still coordinates the administration of the drug to over seven hundred thousand children in Ghana, Kenya, and Malawi – as part of an unofficial clinical trial it calls a "pilot implementation." (It was the Gates-aligned SAGE that recommended the pilot implementation.) The meme on page 24 might seem to be humorous and yet it is the absolute truth. The facts shared in this chapter more than confirm the fact the WHO and GAVI are not about public health but more about harming helpless poor people.

Since this product is administered to children as part of the countries' vaccination schedule, the WHO claims consent is implied. But parents aren't always given information regarding safety risks, again rendering them unable to give informed consent for their children. As the Associate Editor of the British Medical Journal put it, "an implied consent process means that recipients of the malaria vaccine are not being informed that they are in a study."

The Gates Foundation also funded clinical trials of Human Papillomavirus (HPV) vaccines made by GSK and Merck. These drugs were given to 23,000 young girls in remote Indian provinces as part of an initiative by the Gates-backed Program for Appropriate Health and Technology (PATH). Again, study participants were robbed of the ability to give informed consent, as the "pros and cons of vaccination [were not] properly communicated to the parents or guardians."

According to Professor Linsey McGoey from the University of Essex: “Most of the vaccines were given to girls at ashram pathshalas (boarding schools for tribal children), side-stepping the need to seek parental consent for the shots.”

PATH also failed to implement a system for recording major adverse reactions to the vaccines, which is legally mandated for large-scale clinical trials. The Indian Committee on Health and Family Welfare brought PATH to court for this alleged transgression, accusing it of human rights violations and of child abuse. In 2013, the court’s two judge panel observed that while foreign companies “are treating India as a heaven for clinical trials, and it is proving hell for India.”

India’s parliamentary committee charged that the “sole aim” of the Gates-funded project was to promote “commercial interests of the HPV vaccine manufacturers, who would have reaped windfall profits if PATH had been successful in getting the HPV vaccine included in the universal immunization program of the Country.”

Editor Emeritus of the ‘National Medical Journal of India’ concurred with the panel’s report, writing that this was an “obvious case where Indians were being used as guinea pigs.”

In addition to pushing dangerous products onto poorer countries, the Gates Foundation actually stunts improvements to public health systems and access to health care. Thus, changes in social and economic determinants of health take a backseat to more profitable, technology centric solutions like vaccines. The western media has been derelict when reporting on the Gate Foundation and the WHO.

This phenomenon is reflected in the WHO budget. As stated, the Gates Foundation is the largest contributor to the WHO’s polio eradication program, but the largest funder of WHO’s “health systems” program is the government of Japan.

According to Global Justice Now, “the [Foundation’s] heavy focus on developing new vaccines... detracts from other, more vital health priorities such as building resilient health systems.”

As Dr. David Legge explains, “[Gates] has got a mechanistic view of global health, in terms of looking for silver bullets. All of the things he supports are largely framed as silver bullets ... That means that major issues that have been identified in the World Health Assembly are not being addressed, including in particular the social determinants of health, and the development of health systems.”

In 2011, Gates spoke at the WHO, saying: “All 193 member states, you must make vaccines a central focus of your health systems.”

University of Toronto public health professor Anne Emanuelle Birn wrote in 2005 that the Foundation had a “narrowly conceived understanding of health as the product of technical interventions divorced from economic, social, and political contexts.”

“The Gates Foundation has long championed private sector involvement in, and private sector profit-making from global health,” Birn told The ‘Grayzone’.

One of GAVI’s senior representatives even reported that Bill Gates often told him in private conversations “that he is vehemently ‘against’ health systems” because it is a “complete waste of money.”

This phenomenon is also reflected in how the policy agenda is set at GAVI. GAVI, too, focuses on vertical health interventions like vaccines, instead of horizontal approaches, like building and strengthening health systems in poor countries.

A report by Global Public Health outlines the “Gates approach” to health systems, analyzing how disease-specific projects like vaccines have eclipsed efforts to work on publicly funded health systems. The article’s author, Katerini Storeng, pointed to GAVI as an example of how “global health initiatives have come to capture the global health debate about health systems strengthening in favor of their disease specific approach and ethos.”

According to a former GAVI staffer who spoke with Storeng, even former GAVI CEO Julian Lob-Levitt was aware of the “absurdity of vaccine campaigns that consume four weeks to plan, implement and clean up and that, when repeated eight times a year, totally paralyze the health system.”

At one point, Lob-Levitt commissioned a series of evaluations of GAVI, which identified weaknesses in health systems and the need to strengthen them. The push to do so, however, was “strongly resisted by many powerful actors [on GAVI’s board]” including USAID and the Gates Foundation, according to Storeng’s interviews.

Storeng writes that a GAVI staffer told her that the Gates Foundation was a “very loud, vocal voice, saying that we do not believe in the strengthening of health systems.”

The report also notes:

Gates’ reputation for being ‘not very good at listening’ has encouraged a non-confrontational approach within the global health arena ... a former GAVI employee and HSS [health systems strengthening] proponent recounted how he and his colleagues used to ‘roll down the HSS posters’ when Bill Gates came to visit the GAVI headquarters in Geneva because he is known to ‘hate this part’ of GAVI’s work.

The Foundation’s preference for weak public health systems, and for techno-centric solutions to public health problems is not limited to its work with the drug industry. It also shapes policy in the crucial sector of food.

Early this year, Gates set up a new non-profit institute based in St. Louis, Missouri, home of Monsanto. The Foundation said the new organization, dubbed Gates Ag One, will “enable the advancement of resilient, yield enhancing seeds” and introduce them into “crops essential to smallholder farmers, particularly in sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia.”

Yet while helping small farmer’s sounds like a noble endeavor, the Foundation has worked to ensure that the Global South is dependent on Western industry, whether through drugs or high-tech seeds and agrochemicals.

Much of this activity began in 2006 when the Gates Foundation partnered with the Rockefeller Foundation to give birth to the Alliance for A Green Revolution in Africa (AGRA). Gates committed $100 million, while the Rockefeller Foundation ponied up with $50 million.

The approach of AGRA, which opened up African markets to U.S. agribusiness, is based on the belief that hunger is due to a lack of Western tech, instead of the result of inequality or exploitation.

According to a report by the African Center for Biosafety:

“It is striking that none of those in the forefront of the revolution is African. No different from the colonial project in Africa, this new revolution is created and most ardently advocated by white men claiming to fight for the emancipation of Africans from the clutches of hunger and poverty.”

Through AGRA, the Foundation pushes for the introduction of patented, genetically modified (GM) seeds and fertilizers. While these technologies help seed and chemical giants like Monsanto, they often undermine food security.

Dr. Vandana Shiva maintains that the idea that GM crops increase yields is a “scientific falsehood.” For another, the Gates Foundation again ensures that valuable resources are diverted away from systemic solutions to hunger and poverty.

As the Ecologist asserted, Gates and Monsanto partner in the “inappropriate and fraudulent GMO project which promotes a technical quick fix ahead of tackling the structural issues that create hunger, poverty and food insecurity.”

What’s more, the Gates Foundation actually influences African governments to change laws to accommodate the agriculture industry.

According to Grain.org:

“In Ghana ... AGRA helped the government review its seed policies with the goal of identifying barriers to the private sector getting more involved. With technical and financial support from AGRA, the country’s seed legislation was revised and a new pro-business seed law was passed in mid-2010. Among other things it established a register of varieties that can be marketed. In Tanzania, discussions between AGRA and government representatives facilitated a major policy change to privatize seed production. In Malawi, AGRA supported the government in revising its maize pricing and trade policies.”

Commenting on the role of Bill Gates in reshaping agriculture markets, Shiva told The Grayzone, “You create a new field, you invest in it. You force governments to invest in it, you destroy the regulation. You destroy the alternatives, you attack the scientists. And you create whole machinery for your monopoly.”

As in the case of Gates and Big Pharma, these moves can be explained by the Gates Foundation’s apparent conflicts of interest. And as before, the examples go on and on. Former Deputy Director of the Foundation’s agriculture program, Robert Horsch, was previously a high ranking executive at Monsanto, where he worked for 25 years. Horsch led the team that manages agricultural grants, and according to Global Policy Forum, “he was asked to join the Gates Foundation particularly for the purpose of continuing his Monsanto research.”

Sam Dryden, the former director of the Gates Foundation’s agriculture program, previously led two of the largest genetically modified seed companies, Emergent Genetics and Agragentic Corporation. In 2005, Emergent was bought by Monsanto, where Dryden stayed for six months. While he was at the Gates Foundation, The Guardian called him “the most powerful figure in the global south’s agriculture.”

The former program officer for Gates’ agriculture program, Don Dowering, was previously a founding member of Monsanto’s Biotechnology Advisory Council. Dowering led an Agricultural Development team that directed money into “help[ing] poor farmers in Sub-Saharan Africa and Asia.”

Then there’s Florence Wambugu, who authored the book ‘Modifying Africa’ and has been called “an apostle of Monsanto in Africa.” After receiving a scholarship from USAID, Wambugu became a researcher at Monsanto. She was then appointed to the Gates Foundation’s Global Development board.

As with several of its pharmaceutical endeavors, the Gates Foundation works with USAID in the agriculture sector. Pamela K. Anderson, the current director of agriculture development at the Gates Foundation, is currently on the board of USAID.

Twenty-two-thousand children die each day due to poverty. Yet socio-economic causes of health problems can be neglected when industry aligned interests call the shots. Such is the case with the Gates Foundation’s primacy in the global health arena.

In short, the Gates Foundation’s leadership in previous global health efforts displays an allegiance not to public health, but to the imperatives of Western capital. It prefers not to strengthen health systems, but to ensure nations remain dependent on Big Pharma and/or Big Agriculture for as long as possible. It is in this light the Gates’ leadership in the global fight against Covid-19 can be understood.

In mid-May, the Trump Administration unveiled its new Covid vaccine project: “Operation Warp Speed.” While announcing the new project, President Trump boasted that his administration “cut through every piece of red tape to achieve the fastest-ever, by far, launch of a vaccine trial.”

Like the Trump Administration, Bill Gates is advocating for the acceleration of Covid drug approval timeline. He writes that “governments will need to expedite their usual drug approval processes in order to deliver the vaccine to over 7 billion people quickly.” He says “there is simply no alternative” to this agenda.

In March, the U.S. passed federal regulations granting liability immunity to corporations producing Covid-19 drugs, including vaccines. It also provided liability immunity to any entity distributing the drugs. This is highly alarming and a warning to anyone even thinking about taking a Covid-19 vaccine. You will not be able to sue for damages in the event you survive vaccine side effects.

With over one hundred Covid vaccines currently in development, this means products will be indemnified against lawsuits, even if they produce harmful effects.

If vaccine makers are indeed exempted by governments around the globe from legal penalties, these companies have little incentive to protect people from harmful side effects. As in the past, it seems that citizens of the world’s poorest countries are set to become “guinea pigs for the drug makers.” Americans take close note to his crimes against humanity!

Bill Gates’ advocacy for legal immunity for drug manufacturers dates back to at least 2015, when he lamented during the Ebola outbreak that there was no clear process for “providing indemnity against legal liability.” He suggested that during a “global epidemic,” drug companies should be indemnified to “avert long delays.” Now, his proposal is coming to fruition.

Gates justified his position on the grounds that companies will need to produce drugs as fast as possible to save lives, and these new drugs may not always be safe. “Understanding safety... is very, very hard,” he said to CBS. “There will be some risk and indemnification needed before [getting a vaccine out] can be decided on.”

Normally, a drug goes through a phase of animal testing before it gets tested on small (Phase I), medium (Phase II) and large numbers of people (Phase III). But with Covid, Gates wants to “save time” by conducting tests on humans and animals at the same time.

Today, the U.S. is “compressing what is typically seven to ten years of vaccine development,” according to the head of the U.S. National Institute of Health (NIH).

This may produce some troubling effects. For one, a successful coronavirus vaccine has yet to be produced, and a new one could trigger lethal reactions. Tropical disease specialist Dr. Peter Hotez, who worked on a failed vaccine for another coronavirus (SARS), said that during experimental tests of the drug, animals fell victim to what he calls “immune enhancement.” The animals that were given the shot developed more severe (and often fatal) versions of the virus when compared with unvaccinated animals.

Hotez told Reuters, “The way you reduce that risk [for humans] is first you show it does not occur in laboratory animals.” The medical expert stated that while “[he understands] the importance of accelerating timelines for vaccines in general, but ... this is not the vaccine to be doing it with.”

Without performing the initial phase of animal testing normally required to bring a vaccine to market, a biotech company named Moderna is now conducting human trials for its Covid vaccine. Moderna’s vaccine is an mRNA type which has never been approved by the FDA for use on humans.

This technology, which contains genetically engineered cells that can permanently alter human DNA, was developed with grants from both the Gates Foundation and the Pentagon’s Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA). Moderna says it has a “strategic alliance” with DARPA, which gave the company $25 million in total. This is another weird relationship that should raise red flags.

Moderna’s mRNA technology has been singled out by Bill Gates as “one of the most promising options for COVID.” Gates even has a “global health project framework agreement” with Moderna to give it up to $100 million for the development of its mRNA technology, in exchange for receiving “certain non-exclusive licenses.”

Moderna’s co-founder Robert Langer has partnered with Gates in the past on projects such as the contraceptive microchip implant that can be activated wirelessly.

When Moderna announced the completion of its Phase 1 safety trial May 18, corporate news outlets parroted Moderna’s “good news.” But the fine print in the release revealed that three of the 15 participants injected with the highest dose of the vaccine developed grade three systemic symptoms, which the FDA defines as “severe,” “disabling,” requiring “hospitalization,” but “not immediately life-threatening.”

On May 15, President Trump appointed Moncef Slaoui – a board member of Moderna who until May 19 held more than $10.3 million in Moderna stock – as Chief Scientist of the nation’s effort to find a COVID 19 vaccine.

Slaoui, who calls himself a “venture capitalist,” is also on the board of directors at The International AIDS Vaccine Initiative (IAVI), a “public-private” partnership organization that’s received more than $359 million from the Gates Foundation.

Sloaui also held leadership positions at GSK. While heading the company’s Research and Development, GSK pleaded guilty and paid $3 billion in what the U.S. Justice Department referred to as the “largest healthcare fraud settlement in U.S. history.” The fraud included the cover-up of the link between the drug Paxil and suicidal and depressive side effects (predominantly in children), the cover-up of the link between the drug Avandia and heart attacks, which the FDA estimated lead to 83,000 excess heart attacks, as well several bribery and illegal kickback schemes.

While he was GSK's Chairman of Vaccines, Slaoui oversaw the development of the swine flu vaccine named Pandemrix, which was rushed to market without proper testing during the swine flu outbreak. The result was an unsafe shot that left at least eight hundred people with brain damage, 80 percent of them children. Since GSK only agreed to give governments the vaccine on the condition that it be indemnified from liability, U.K. taxpayer money was used to pay millions of pounds in compensation to the victims.

Slaoui was hired to be the Trump Administration's "vaccine czar" as a private contractor, not a government employee. This means, as 'Public Citizen' explained, that Slaoui can "maintain an extensive web of conflicting financial interests without the need to divest of, recuse from, or disclose those conflicting interests." This is another bad Trump decisions in the area of vaccines. You should not count on President Trump to stick to his statement that the vaccine would not be mandatory.

The corporate media likes to paint the Covid response as a tug of war between the blowhards like Donald Trump and "champions of science" like Bill Gates. However, Slaoui's appointment to co-direct "Operation Warp Speed" indicates that here, the Trump Administration and the Gates Foundation are on the same team.

After entering his new Trump Administration role, Slaoui declared that Moderna's clinical trial data made him confident "we will be able to deliver a few hundred million doses of vaccine by the end of 2020."

Although the U.S. government has picked Moderna as one of its five COVID vaccine "finalists," financial moves by some company executives suggest Moderna's best days might be behind them.

According to SEC filings, the company's Chief Financial Officer Lorence Kim sold 214,000 Moderna shares on the day of the press release, immediately profiting more than $16 million. This speaks strongly on his confidence in the future of Moderna!

Thomas Lys, a professor of accounting at Northwestern University, was quoted by 'Stat News' saying this could simply be a financial decision by Moderna to get some liquidity, but that "there's always that other possibility – that these guys really know the whole thing is bogus and they're selling while the selling is good."

Chief medical officer Tal Zaks, who held close to 100,000 shares of Moderna stock at the beginning of the year, started dumping shares a few days before Moderna announced its vaccine was ready for human testing, and has profited more than $18 million in 2020, and now owns zero shares.

“If he even thought there was a chance this vaccine would be good, he’d hold on to a few hundred shares,” said Del Bigtree, host of the medical talk show ‘The Highwire’. “I think we may have a whistleblower right here, that is saying to the world, yes, I have zero. I am the Chief Medical Officer and I’m telling you, this ship is sinking.”

In October, 2019, the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security hosted something called Event 201 in partnership with the World Economic Forum and the Gates Foundation.

(A former steering committee member of The Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security is now the Trump Administration’s stockpile chief and that the CEO of Johns Hopkins Medicine is also on the Board of Directors at Merck.)

Event 201 was an exercise simulating the outbreak of a novel coronavirus. It included representatives from the U.S. National Security Council, as well as corporate leadership from drug makers like Johnson & Johnson. While similarities between the mock outbreak and the real outbreak have prompted unsubstantiated theories about Bill Gates “predicting” COVID 19, it is undeniable that the policy proposals that emerged out of the exercise are being implemented today.

Following the simulation (complete with chillingly realistic mock press conferences and newscasts by an imitation network called GNN), the three organizations issued recommendations for dealing with a “severe pandemic.” One recommendation was to have a “robust international stockpile” of medical countermeasures like vaccines.

During the simulation, the Foundation’s Global Health President, Chris Elias, urged such a stockpile. He explained that “a global stockpile would certainly help ensure a rational and strategic allocation,” but that a collaboration between the WHO and the private sector is necessary to make one effective.

From an objective standpoint, a centralized stockpile of medical countermeasures can be of value during a health crisis. But the question of who controls and distributes it raises troubling issues.

Dr. David Legge told The ‘Grayzone’ that Elias’s suggestion would further increase the influence of Big Pharma, because “undoubtedly, a public private partnership with a procurement focus and distribution focus would involve Big Pharma and make WHO dependent on the goodwill of Big Pharma.”

Gates might argue that the control and distribution of such stockpiles should also be influenced by Western institutions like NATO. In 2015, he wrote that during a “severe epidemic,” “some global institution could be empowered and funded to coordinate the [epidemic response] system,” that there should be discussion about splitting authority between the WHO and “others (including the World Bank and the G7 countries),” and that “the conversation should include military alliances such as NATO.”

Gates has also argued that “low-income countries should be some of the first to receive [the COVID 19 vaccine].” If NATO is playing a role in controlling and distributing vaccines, such aid could be used to further a Western military agenda, as Western “aid” has been during past humanitarian interventions.

Gates has nearly monopolized the realm of public health policy, both nationally and internationally. “Fauci and I are in constant contact,” he has proclaimed, referring to the face of the U.S. Covid response, National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases Director Anthony Fauci. At the same time, the mega-billionaire is apparently talking to both CEOs of pharmaceutical companies and heads of government “every day.”

While maintaining relationships with government organizations and the profit-driven private sector, the Gates Foundation has become perhaps the most influential player in the global COVID 19 response. So if the Gates Foundation’s work has favored Western multinationals at the expense of public health in the past, why should anyone expect a different result this time?

In early July the ‘Associated Press’ reported that South Africans had gathered in Johannesburg to protest the presence of the phase III AstraZeneca clinical trial in Africa. The Gates Foundation had poured $750 million into this vaccine effort in the last month, and protestors were photographed holding banners that read, “we not guinea pigs” and, “no to Gates poison.”

Demonstration organizer Phapano Phasha told AP that vulnerable groups were being manipulated into participating in the trial without being able to make an informed choice. “I believe in science,” Phasha said. “I’m not against vaccinations, I’m against profiteering.”

Reports say both Moderna’s and AstraZeneca’s vaccine could be available for public distribution by the end of the year.

The ‘Grayzone’ contacted the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, the Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunization (GAVI), and the Program for Appropriate Technologies in Health (PATH) for comment on this article and has yet to receive a response.

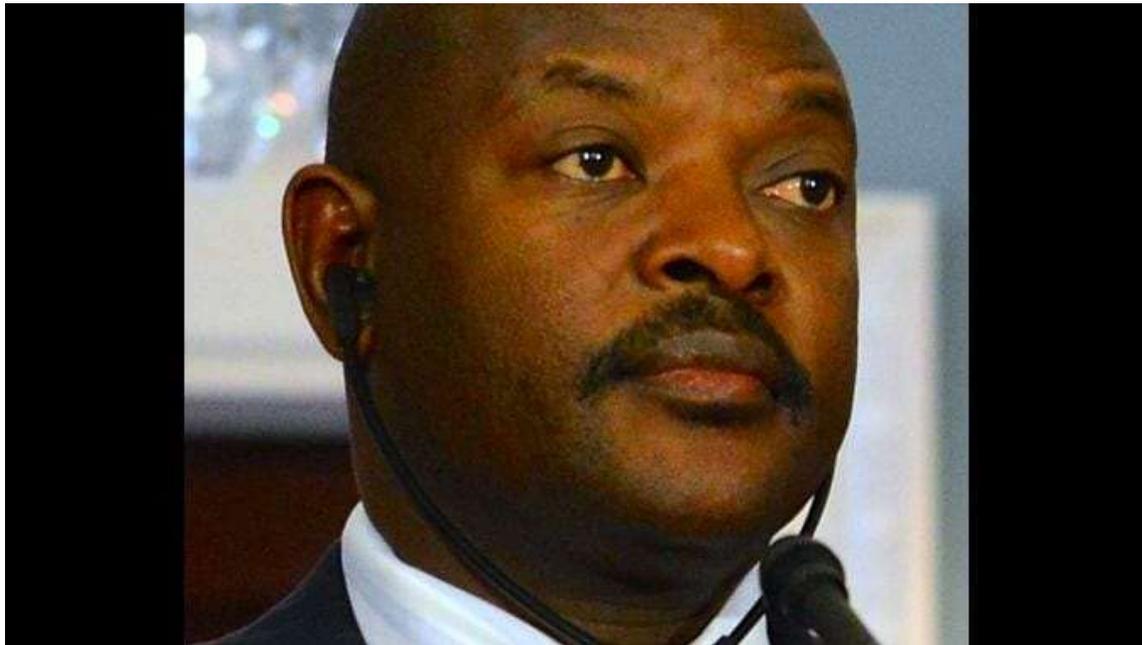

Push back from African leaders has begun to occur among African nations.

Tanzania has suspended the head of its national health laboratory in charge of coronavirus testing, a day after President John Magufuli questioned the accuracy of the tests. Magufuli, who holds a doctorate in chemistry said on Sunday he had secretly had animals, fruits and vehicle oil tested at the laboratory. A papaya, a quail and a goat had been found to be positive, according to the president.

The samples were given human names and ages and were submitted to the country’s National Referral Laboratory to test for coronavirus without the lab technicians knowing the true identity of the samples.

Tanzanian President John Magufuli was suspicious of WHO and decided to trick them by sending samples of a papaya, a goat, and a quail for testing COVID19. They all tested positive. The president kicked out the WHO representative in the country and denounced the fact, tweeted Radioa AN24.

Then there is the recent death of Burundian President Dies Suddenly after Expelling WHO for False Pandemic. This occurred on June 23, 2020.

President of Burundi Pierre Nkurunziza,

Burundi, Africa: President Pierre Nkurunziza, 55, died following a cardiac arrest despite being known for his good health. Some have speculated that his death is linked to the fact that, less than a month ago, the Burundian government expelled experts from the World Health Organization responsible for ‘advising’ on the false Covid-19 pandemic. Burundi had only one COVID death. Nkurunziza’s unexpected death is reminiscent of the mysterious plane crash that killed Polish President Lech Kaczyński in 2009 shortly after he refused the vaccine from the WHO against the H1N1 flu.

President of Burundi Pierre Nkurunziza, 55, has died “following a cardiac arrest”. The sudden death comes as a surprise as he had been evaluated recently as being in good overall health.

But controversy has emerged in the African country as local pundits have suggested that his death could have been the consequence of poisoning.

Less than a month ago, the Burundian government ordered the expulsion of experts from the World Organization of Health (WHO) responsible for ‘advising’ on the false pandemic Covid-19.

The President and his Ministry of Foreign Affairs had declared that the WHO representatives would henceforth be 'persona non grata', that is not welcome on Burundian territory.

These world technocrats are exploiting the Panic of 2020, to bring a technocrat coup d'état. The science of social engineering began in the 1930s with the entire Rockefeller Eugenics agenda, at a time when people were being sterilized for many reasons, often medically unnecessary. People that are controlling the agenda of vaccines are still using the science of social engineering around the world today through philanthropy, and its hidden "strings of attachment".

Technocracy is not a political system, it is an economic system. This becomes the core of globalism, the transnational corporation, and computer algorithms rule human life. This brings us the essence of Agenda 2030, 5G, Artificial Intelligence, Internet of all things, and every aspect of life. This brings us to the World Economic Forum and the 4th Industrial Revolution, and the "Mark" of the Beast in the Great Economic Reset.

The "Wellness Pass" Partnership

With the aim of being introduced in "low-income, remote communities" in West Africa and later replicated worldwide; the program is the result of a public-private partnership between the GAVI vaccine alliance backed by Bill Gates, MasterCard and Trust Stamp which is an AI-powered "identity authentication" company.

This program was to be first launched in late 2018. Trust Stamp's advanced digital identification technology will be integrated into the GAVI-MasterCard initiative "Wellness Pass" – a digital vaccination record and identity system which is to be also linked to MasterCard's click-to-play system powered by MasterCard's AI and Machine Learning technology. MasterCard made a commitment that it will create a "centralized record keeping of childhood immunization". It also describes itself as a leader towards a "World Beyond Cash".

The future prospects of this GAVI and MasterCard partnership is worth exploring. This partnership with GAVI signifies a novel strategy aimed towards linking a biometric digital identity system, vaccination records, and a payment system into a single platform that is cohesive, coherent and synergistic.

Digital Health Passport

The program was launched two years ago and has been funded with $3.8 million in the GAVI donor funds. In addition to this it received a similar amount from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

It was in early June when GAVI reported that MasterCard's Wellness Pass program has the potential to be adapted in response to the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic. A month after this, MasterCard announced that Trust Stamp's advanced biometric identity platform will also be integrated into the Wellness Pass. This was done taking into consideration the Trust Stamp's capability of providing biometric identity globally; even at places lacking internet access or cellular connectivity and also it does not require knowledge of an individual's legal name or identity to function.

India funds Vaccine Cartel GAVI

The Indian government has pledged US $15 million to the global vaccine alliance GAVI over the next 5 years for the global Coronavirus vaccine project led by Britain. GAVI is largely led by the British government and Bill Gates. While the UK is GAVI's largest funder, its implementation follows what is known as the "Gates approach". Known as the Vaccine Cartel or Pharma Cartel by critics, such vaccines have been accused of causing at least 38 million premature deaths worldwide.

While there is growing criticism against these organizations worldwide, India is again collaborating on similar initiatives on coronavirus vaccine with the same Vaccine Cartel. A consortium comprising Serum Institute, Gates Foundation, MIT, and Spy Biotech (a UK based biotech company) is trying to develop a vaccine using the new spy-tag vaccine development technology. A long-term Merck and Wellcome Trust venture on vaccine research, policy and manufacturing will be based in Delhi.

Trust Stamp's Evergreen Hash

Trust Stamp has created a biometric identity system, using the technology called Evergreen Hash. This technology creates a "3D mask" based on a single photo, palm or fingerprint of a person. With the creation of this "mask" the "original data" is eliminated and "encrypted keys are created. These encrypted keys serve in place of a person's name, fingerprint, and all the other information used for identification.

Digital Identification Program ID2020

The electoral commission of Ghana has been trying hard to put this idea into action before the general elections happen in December, 2020. The 'budget allocation' of the new system has been questioned. Bright Simons, the honorary VP of the IMAMI policy think tank, claimed that "unnecessarily registration of 17 million people all over again" signifies that millions of dollars are "being blown" for reasons that are unexplained.

An Italian politician has demanded arrest of #BillGates in Italian Parliament. Sara Cunial, MP for Rome denounced Bill Gates as "Vaccine Criminal" and urged Italian President to hand him over to the International Criminal Court for crimes against humanity. <https://t.co/fDuMT8v1B1>

The concept of using biometrics for national ID registration systems is a highly politicized issue. Earlier this plan to chip the human race through the digital identification program ID2020 was exposed in the Italian parliament by Sara Cunial, the Member of Parliament for Rome who denounced Bill Gates as a "vaccine criminal" and demanded Bill Gates's arrest in the Italian Parliament.

With the medical research going at such a fast pace when a Covid-19 vaccine becomes available, this technology will be used in vaccination programs and implemented worldwide under the GAVI umbrella. The program said to "evolve as you evolve" is part of the Global War on Cash and has the potential dual use for the purposes of surveillance and "predictive policing" based on your vaccination history. Those who may not wish to be vaccinated may be locked out of the system based on their trust score.

“Now, look at what is store for mass murderer Bill Gates and his fellow medical cartel criminals. Here is a famous mug shot of Bill Gates when he was arrested in his younger years. The official story is that he was arrested for a traffic violation. However, CIA sources say the real charge was related to Gates being found in his car with an underage boy in a compromising position in the back seat. Remember this news item about a man being arrested on the Bill Gates estate for kiddie porn? CIA sources say he was in reality trying to eliminate incriminating evidence against Gates. They now say Gates was also involved in torturing and killing young children in order to harvest adrenochrome.” ~Benjamin Fulford
