

Send the Migrant Buses to the Catholic Bishops

By Cliff Kincaid - December 28th, 2022

December 28, 2022

Roman Catholic Governors Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey, Texas Gov. Greg Abbott and Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis are shipping illegal aliens from border states to other parts of the country. Why don't they send them to the D.C. headquarters of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops?

The address is 3211 4th St NE Washington D.C., 20017.

The Catholic Church has a "Join the Justice for Immigrants Campaign" that urges people to "Take action in solidarity with immigrants, migrants, refugees and people on the move."

Why not send the immigrants, migrants, and refugees to Catholic Churches or the homes of Catholic politicians?

I'm amazed that this "solution" is not being discussed.

Whether left-wing or right-wing, Catholics seem to be united in demanding that the church's role in this on-going invasion be ignored.

One exception is Brian Burch, president of Catholic Vote, who says, "American Catholics deserve to know the full extent of the U.S. government's role in funding and coordinating with Catholic Church-affiliated agencies at the border, and what role these agencies played in the record surge of illegal immigrants over the past year."

He joined with Judicial Watch to file FOIA lawsuits to investigate the conduct of government and Catholic officials.

So far, according to One America News, Texas has bused over 15,900 migrants to sanctuary cities. That includes:

Over 8,900 to DC.
Over 4,900 to NYC

Over 1,500 to Chicago
Over 630 to Philadelphia

In the latest stunt, Abbott sent them to Vice President Kamala Harris' house on Christmas Eve.

But these migrants should have been bused to the Catholic churches in the area, so that parishioners could understand the policies supported by the Catholic Bishops they finance through the collection plate.

Catholic support for illegal aliens is a subject of censorship because Catholic officials, who run the largest religious denomination in the United States, don't want the Catholics in the pews to understand the church role in this debacle.

To his credit, Abbott has sparked outrage from the Catholic bishops in Texas by declining to participate in the federal refugee resettlement program, which finances Catholic Charities and other entities. But busing them to other cities is not a solution, either.

On "Maria Bartiromo's Wall Street," on December 24, the Archbishop of New York, Timothy Cardinal Dolan, discussed "the true meaning of Christmas" and how a recent report on people attending church and believing in God are "at historic lows."

He said the challenge is winning people back to Christ amidst the "darkness" of the present age.

Perhaps the Catholic role in facilitating the invasion has something to do with people leaving the church.

It is a sensitive topic.

One possible solution is for the Catholic Bishops to support American sovereignty and take care of the immigrants themselves, rather than depend on federal largesse.

In fairness, there are some efforts in this regard.

The U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, Migration and Refugee Services (USCCB/MRS) says it works with dioceses across the country, relying "upon parishes and other local community groups to carry out the scriptural mandate" to "welcome the stranger," as "personified in refugees, migrants, and other men, women, and children on the move."

There is one Catholic project, Parishes Organized to Welcome Immigrants and Refugees (POWIR), described as "a privately funded national initiative" led by the USCCB which "seeks to develop a base of support, mentorship, and welcome for the newcomer through local, parish-based ministries of hospitality."

But very little is known about the scope of this campaign. It is reported that POWIR has helped “thousands of refugee clients” find places to live, make friends, learn English, find work, receive pro bono legal counsel and medical services, and achieve social integration.

In terms of overall figures, however, that number is very small.

Under Biden, says the group Help Save Maryland, “We are talking about over 6.5 million NEW illegal aliens operating in our country in 2023, on top of the 25-35 million illegals already hiding in plain sight!”

One of many organizations warning about the impact of illegal aliens, it says the results will be property tax increases, greater drug trade and deadly overdoses, overcrowded public schools and hospitals, depleted social welfare budgets, growing human sex slave trafficking, and increased crime, rape of minors, and gang violence.

Meanwhile, a Catholic group called the Catholic Climate Covenant says it wants “to advance the common good by protecting our Common Home.” So why not open Catholic homes to the illegal aliens?

It’s easy to talk about “Mother Earth.” But what about opening their homes to the illegal aliens?

Let’s see if they walk the talk. I think we have the answer.

I visited the Vatican and found it is surrounded by a wall. Local Catholic churches are locked so that homeless people can’t come inside and get warm.

I once interviewed Dan LeRoy, author of a book, *Liberty’s Lions: The Catholic Revolutionaries Who Established America*, which examines the role of Catholics in winning American independence in the Revolution. LeRoy looks at people like Charles Carroll, the only Catholic signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Leroy addressed how anti-Catholic discrimination at the time of the revolution gave way to Catholic domination of the Supreme Court today.

It is an amazing story.

Catholics have much to offer America but they have to demand that Catholic officials practice what they preach, not only in regard to the scandals affecting the church but the impact of its pro-immigration policies.

The problem we face today, the darkness identified by Dolan, is corruption in government, the media, and the church that runs so deep that it is uncomfortable for some to even talk about it publicly.

The Christian existentialist philosopher Soren Kierkegaard wrote about the corruption in the Danish State Church, declaring that everyone knew privately that the system was rotten and corrupt but they would not say so publicly. “Just as one says that death has marked a man, so we recognize the symptoms which demand to be attacked. It is a battle against lies,” he said.

And who is the father of lies? Dolan can tell us.

I have been a regular follower of Cliff Kincaid for more than fifteen years. I first heard his opinions on a radio station in Pittsburgh more than twenty years ago. Cliff Kincaid from my perspective is a 20th century “Reformer”, a modern-day Martin Luther. He has rightly so puts the light of day on the evils of the Roman Catholic Institution. His voice represents a very large community of Catholic laity which regret the liberal progressive shift of the Catholic church that came out of Vatican II in 1965 and Jesuit ecumenism.

We need to be reminded that the father of lies does not call Rome his home for nothing. He has spread his tentacles which have infiltrated most of institutional Protestant and Evangelical churches today. When God exercises to execute judgment, it will consume all those churches that have chosen to dishonor God’s Sacred Holy Word. 1st Peter 4:17 reminds us “For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?”

U.S. President Joe Biden signed the Respect for Marriage Act into law on December 13 at a celebration that featured singer Cyndi Lauper performing “True Colors” in front of thousands of supporters on the White House lawn.

The new law federally recognizes same-sex marriages and was born out of concern that the Supreme Court could reverse its legal support of such relationships.

Although same-sex marriage has been legal in the U.S. since 2015, the move was decided by a Supreme Court case and hadn’t been written into law before now.

After Roe v. Wade – the case that guaranteed the federal right to an abortion – was overturned earlier this year, LGBTQ activists called on the government to pass a bill for marriage equality.

Cheers erupted from the crowd as Biden’s double signed the bill.

“Marriage is a simple proposition. Who do you love? And will you be loyal to that person you love? It’s not more complicated than that. The law recognizes that everyone should have the right to answer those questions for themselves,” Biden said. “Today’s a good day.”

Pop icon Lauper, famous for her 80s hit "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun," and British singer Sam Smith both performed at the event.

"This time, love wins," Lauper said before starting to sing.

"We can rest easy tonight because our families are validated and because now we're allowed to love who we love," said Lauper, an LGBTQ activist.

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi said the bill promoted equality.

"Everyone deserves to bask in the magical blessing of building a union with the person you love."

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer, whose daughter and her wife are expecting a child, called it "a day of jubilation".

Has anyone else recognized that America changed for the worst following the Court ruling of January 22, 1973. The real Joseph Biden once stood for the view of the Biblical view that marriage was between a man and a woman! Jonathan Cahn sent an open message to the man who calls himself Joseph Biden, a supposedly a Catholic! We can only expect God's Judgment folks!

Blessings,
