Diamond & Nugget #172

UKRAINE HAS LAUNCHED AN ATTACK AGAINST RUSSIA'S KURSK NUCLEAR POWER PLANT!

The Ukraine government has launched a drone attack against Russia's Kursk Nuclear Power Plant, shown above. Thankfully, Russian air defenses caused the drone to go down just 4-km from the plant as shown in the video below. The plant WAS NOT damaged. Hal Turner posted the report on Saturday, July 15, 2023, post stamped at about 12:25 AM Russian time. The night video sound suggested it was a missile and not a drone bomb.

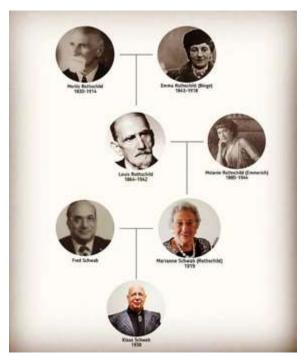

The Kursk Nuclear Power Plant is located in western Russia, about 100km (60 miles) from the Ukraine Border, Ukraine fired what is initially described as a "kamikaze drone" at the plant, but the brief video sounds far more like an actual missile, than a drone:

The apartment complex in the video is slightly less than four (4) kilometers away from the plant. In fact, this apartment complex is actually on the shoreline of the plant's lake-sized cooling pond! What kind of monster deliberately tries to blow up a nuclear power plant? What kind of Satanic Evil is running Ukraine?

I posted Blessed Hope #171 earlier Saturday morning and I suggested that Zelensky is a "Dead Man" walking and could be so unbalanced as to provoke a "nuclear war" that would set off a chain reaction. I mentioned on page 16 of BH#171 that he might try to seek revenge or retribution for being rebuffed getting an unnerving ultimatum from NATO/U.S. In his temper tantrums, Zelensky has demanded that American citizens pay for a rebuilding program for Ukraine. Zelensky has used Ukrainian citizens as shields several times in his attacks on former Russian populated Ukraine states that later voted to unite with Russia. Zelensky is a Klaus Schwab protégé Young Global Leader!

News Klaus Schwab is a Rothschild on His Mother's Side

Fred Schwab was born in Frankfurt. In 1935, he managed to leave Germany. His wife, Marianne Rothschild, came from the town of Bad Homburg. After the 1938 Pogroms, she fled to the USA via Great Britain. The couple visited their former country as guests of the City of Frankfurt, to which they kept close emotional ties. Both returned often, met former classmates and spoke at schools.

Klaus Schwab's family tree, on his mother's side:

Their daughter Madeleine was invited by the City of Bad Homburg in 2013. She attended the opening ceremony for a deportation memorial in her mother's home town. From here, her grandparents had been deported to the Theresienstadt concentration camp in 1942. Fred Schwab was born as Friedrich Ernst Schwab into a Jewish family with a centuries-old history in Germany and Frankfurt.

Interestingly, another name pops up as a Rothschild family member. Swedish ecoactivist Greta Thunberg (20) is a great-granddaughter of the notorious banker Lionel Walter Rothschild, son of the first Baron Rothschild. Previously, this fact has drawn the attention of journalists who researched the genealogical tree of the famous family...."

https://europerenaissance.com/2022/04/28/what-a-coincidence-that-press-promoted-greta-thunberg-is-a-blood-relative-of-the-rothschild-clan/

"The house of the Rothschild bankers reluctantly confirms the undeniable. Greta Thunberg is a blood relative of the notorious Rothschild chain of nation-buyers. It explains much about the precocious adolescent's celebrity status drooled over by presidents and prime ministers — and, of course, the slobbering 'on-message' media barons of the Western swamps.

"...After two weeks of research, it turned out that the pubescent activist's greatgrandfather Joachim Thunberg was the son of Lionel Rothschild, who was illegitimate but was recognized in 1928...."

..."According to the Rothschild family, Greta Thunberg is indeed the great-great-granddaughter of one of their most famous representatives, but her environmental activities, they assured, are not related to her origins and are not financed by the house in any way...."

Klaus Schwab is the front man for Prince Charles of Wales, aka The Biblical Antichrist who really runs the Global Reset Program of the World Economic Forum. The WEF was founded by Prince Charles, however with Klaus Schwab getting the credit and recognition. Prince Charles directs the WEF from the shadows. There are a number of references in the Bible which imply the Antichrist will be revealed following the Rapture of the Church. Prince Charles projects his Masonic power through his loyal subjects of The Order of the Garter doing the bidding of their king. Klaus Schwab has operated a school for WEF Future Young Leaders. From what we know you can't apply to attend, you are selected by invitation to attend the various yearly meetings of the World Economic Forum at Davos, Switzerland and the corresponding groups such as the Bilderberg Group, the Trilateral Commission, and the Council on Foreign Relations.

Klaus Schwab's WEF Alumni – A List

From Swiss Policy Research – we have gathered a useful summary of this menacing organization. Note to this amazingly brazen part from Wikipedia's entry about the man:

"Capture of democratic structures and institutions"

Schwab as publisher of the World Economic Forum's 2010 "Global Redesign" report postulates that a globalized world is best managed by a self-selected coalition of multinational corporations, governments (including through the UN system), and select civil society organizations (CSOs). He argues that governments are no longer "the overwhelmingly dominant actors on the world stage" and that "the time has come for a new stakeholder paradigm of international governance". The WEF's vision includes a "public-private" UN, in which certain specialized agencies would operate under joint state and non-state governance systems.

According to the Transnational Institute (TNI), the Forum is hence planning to replace a recognized democratic model with a model where a self-selected group of "stakeholders" make decisions on behalf of the people. The think tank summarizes that we are increasingly entering a world where gatherings such as Davos are "a silent global coup d'état" to capture governance."

The WEF and the Pandemic

How was the Davos World Economic Forum involved in the coronavirus pandemic?

The Davos World Economic Forum (WEF) is a premier forum for governments, global corporations and international entrepreneurs. Founded in 1971 by engineer and economist Klaus Schwab, the WEF describes its mission as "shaping global, regional and industry agendas" and "improving the state of the world". According to its website, "moral and intellectual integrity is at the heart of everything it does."

The WEF has been involved in the coronavirus pandemic in several ways.

First, the WEF was, together with the Gates Foundation, a sponsor of the prescient "Event 201" coronavirus pandemic simulation exercise, held in New York City on October 18, 2019 – the same day as the opening of the Wuhan Military World Games, seen by some as "ground zero" of the global pandemic. China itself has argued that U.S. military athletes may have brought the virus to Wuhan. Wuhan was one of several cities that activated their model "smart cities" 5G wireless networks on October 31st, 2019. 5G is integral to the overall Antichrist System.

Second, the WEF has been a leading proponent of digital biometric identity systems, arguing that they will make societies and industries more efficient, more productive and more secure. In July 2019, the WEF started a project to "shape the future of travel with biometric-enabled digital traveler identity management". In addition, the WEF collaborates with the Gates and Rockefeller-funded ID2020 alliance that runs a program to "provide digital ID with vaccines". In particular, ID2020 sees the vaccination of children as "an entry point for digital identity." Bill Gates' patent is a key element, the major element, of focus in other articles I have done on 5G technology and its role in enslaving and control of humans through merging of human with cloud computing.

Third, WEF founder Klaus Schwab is the author of the book 'COVID-19: The Great Reset', published in July 2020, which argues that the coronavirus pandemic can and should be used for an "economic, societal, geopolitical, environmental and technological reset", including, in particular, advancing global governance, accelerating digital transformation, and tackling climate change. "You Never Let A Good Crisis Go to Waste" as Rahm Emanuel said when he was an adviser to Barack Obama.

Finally, the WEF has been running, since 1993, a program called "Global Leaders of Tomorrow", rebranded, in 2004, as "Young Global Leaders". This program aims at identifying, selecting and promoting future global leaders in both business and politics. Indeed, quite a few "Young Global Leaders" have later managed to become Presidents, Prime Ministers, or CEOs (see below).

During the coronavirus pandemic, several WEF global leaders and global shapers (a junior program of the global leaders) have played prominent roles, typically promoting zero-covid strategies, lockdowns, mask mandates, and vaccine mandates. This may have been in a largely failed attempt to protect public health and the economy, or it may have been in an attempt to advance the global transformation agenda outlined above, or perhaps both.

In this regard, some notable Young Leaders include Jeffrey Zients (U.S. White House Coronavirus Response Coordinator since 2021, selected in 2003), Jeremy Howard (founder of influential lobby group "masks for all"), Leana Wen (zero-covid CNN medical analyst), Eric Feigl-Ding (zero-covid Twitter personality), Gavin Newsom (Governor of California, selected in 2005), Devi Sridhar (British zero-covid professor), Jacinda Ardern (Prime Minister of New Zealand), French President Emanuel Macron (selected one year prior to his election in 2017), Austrian Chancellor Sebastian Kurz, German Chancellor Angela Merkel (selected back in 1993), and German Health Minister Jens Spahn.

To get a full overview of their members, see Global Leaders for Tomorrow and Young Global Leaders on WikiSpooks (a Wiki focusing on covert power structures) as well as the official Young Global Leaders website. For an overview of some notable members in politics and the media, see below.

In conclusion, the Davos World Economic Forum has indeed been involved in the strategic management of the coronavirus pandemic, with a major emphasis on using the pandemic as a catalyst for digital transformation and the global introduction of digital identity systems.

United States

Politics and Policy

Jeffrey Zients (White House Coronavirus Response Coordinator since 2021, selected in 2003), Jeremy Howard (co-founder of lobby group "masks for all", selected in 2013), California Governor Gavin Newsom (selected in 2005), Peter Buttigieg (selected in 2019, candidate for U.S. President in 2020, U.S. secretary of transportation since 2021), Chelsea Clinton (Clinton Foundation board member), Huma Abedin (Hillary Clinton aide, selected in 2012), Nikki Haley (U.S. ambassador to the UN, 2017-2018), Samantha Power (U.S. ambassador to the UN, 2013-2017, USAID Administrator, since 2021), Ian Bremmer (founder of Eurasia Group), Bill Browder (U.S.-British financier), Jonathan Soros (son of George Soros), Kenneth Roth (director of Human Rights Watch), Paul Krugman (economist, selected in 1995), Lawrence Summers (U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, 1999-2001, selected in 1993), Black Lives Matter co-founder Alicia Garza (selected in 2020).

Media

CNN medical analyst Leana Wen (selected in 2018), CNN chief medical correspondent Sanjay Gupta, Covid Twitter personality Eric Feigl-Ding (a 'WEF Global Shaper' since 2013), Andrew Ross Sorkin (New York Times financial columnist), Thomas Friedman (New York Times columnist, selected in 1995), George Stephanopoulos (ABC News, 1993), Lachlan Murdoch (CEO of Fox Corporation, co-chair of News Corp.).

Technology and Social Media

Microsoft founder Bill Gates (1993), former Microsoft CEO Steven Ballmer (2000-2014, selected in 1995), Amazon founder Jeff Bezos (1998), Google co-founders Sergey Brin and Larry Page (2002/2005), former Google CEO Eric Schmidt (2001-2011, selected in 1997), Wikipedia co-founder Jimmy Wales (2007), PayPal co-founder Peter Thiel (2007), eBay co-founder Pierre Omidyar (1999), Facebook founder and CEO Mark Zuckerberg (2009), Facebook COO Sheryl Sandberg (2007).

Great Britain, Canada, New Zealand

Professor Devi Sridhar (a leading 'zero covid' proponent, selected in 2020/21), former British Prime Ministers Tony Blair and Gordon Brown (both selected in 1993), BBC World Service journalist Dawood Azami, Mark Leonard (founding director of the George Soros funded European Council on Foreign Relations), Lynn Forester de Rothschild (co-owner of The Economist), Nathaniel Rothschild (son of Lord Rothschild), historian Niall Ferguson (selected in 2005), William Hague (Foreign Secretary, 2010-2014), Charles Allen (CEO of ITV, 2004-2007; Chairman of EMI, 2008-2010).

New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern (since 2017, selected in 2014), Canadian Deputy Prime Minister Chrystia Freeland (selected in 2001; former managing director of Reuters). Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau is a WEF participant, but is not a confirmed Young Global Leader.

Germany

Chancellor Angela Merkel (selected in 1993, 12 years before becoming Chancellor), current Health Minister Jens Spahn and former Health Ministers Philipp Roesler and Daniel Bahr, current co-chair of the Green Party and failed Chancellor candidate Annalena Baerbock (selected in 2020), former co-chair of the Green Party Cem Özdemir (selected in 2002), media mogul and Axel Springer CEO Mathias Doepfner (selected in 2001), talk show host Sandra Maischberger, late Foreign Minister and Vice Chancellor Guido Westerwelle (1997), former German President Christian Wulff (selected in 1995, 15 years before becoming President), Reto Francioni (former CEO of Deutsche Boerse), Klaus Regling (selected in 1993; CEO of the European Financial Stability Mechanism since 2012).

European Union

EU Commission Presidents Jose Manuel Barroso (2004-2014, selected in 1993) and Jean-Claude Juncker (2014-2019, selected in 1995), French President Emanuel Macron (since 2017, selected in 2016), former French President Nicolas Sarkozy (2007-2012, selected in 1993), Austrian Chancellor Sebastian Kurz, former Italian Prime Minister Matteo Renzi (2014-2016, selected in 2012), former Spanish Prime Minister Jose Maria Aznar (1996-2004, selected in 1993), Guy Verhofstadt (Belgian Prime Minister, 1999-2008, selected in 1993), Danish Minister for the Environment Lea

Wermelin, Finnish Prime Minister Sanna Marin, former Finnish Prime Minister Alexander Stubb.

Switzerland

Natalie Rickli (Director of Health of the Canton of Zurich, selected in 2012), former Presidents of the Swiss National Council Christa Markwalder (selected in 2011) and Pascale Bruderer-Wyss (selected in 2009), NZZ media group CEO Felix R. Graf (selected in 2007), former Swiss Justice Minister Ruth Metzler (selected in 2002), former Swiss television CEO Roger de Weck (2011-2017, selected in 1994), former UBS CEOs Peter Wuffli (selected in 1994) and Marcel Rohner (selected in 2003), former Credit Suisse CEO Tidjane Tiam (1998).

When all seven leaders of the G7 nations parroted the same "Build Back Better" slogan during the heart of the Covid-19 lockdowns, it became clear that it was long past time to pay close attention to the one relevant common denominator between them: the World Economic Forum.

The same thing goes for business leaders – all three CEOs of the three American pharmaceutical companies that developed a Covid-19 vaccine are frequent Davos attendees. But even beyond Covid-19, the same can be said about the next "current thing" – the Russia-Ukraine war – in which the leaders of both countries have had a relationship with the WEF.

Regardless of the issue of the day, the most prominent individuals involved – across different sectors of society and across the political spectrum – almost always have current or past ties to the WEF.

There are a number of ways in which politicians, corporate executives, journalists, academics and even celebrities are linked to the WEF. At minimum, one may attend WEF's bourgie conference in Davos, where the ultra-elite gather annually to discuss how they will finally usher in the long-awaited utopia by taking away our property rights and feeding us bugs. But attending Davos, as sinister as that may be on its face, is still the most elementary form of involvement with the WEF that one can have – there are other more participatory roles.

For example, some specific attendees – including Henry Kissinger, Bill Clinton and Anthony Fauci – are named as members. And beyond that, WEF denotes others – often those who speak at Davos and have an influence on WEF policies – as "Agenda Contributors." Joe Biden, Donald Trump, Xi Jinping, George Soros, Pfizer CEO Albert Bourla, Bank of America CEO Brian Moynihan, transhumanist author Yuval Noah Harari, State Street CEO Ron O'Hanley and BlackRock CEO Larry Fink – who also sits on WEF's board – are Agenda Contributors.

But both of those roles pale in comparison to graduates of WEF's "Young Global Leaders" (YGL) program, which is not some fancy public conference like Davos, but rather a private, instructional multi-year seminar. While some merely attend Davos and others "contribute" to its agenda, YGL graduates are actually trained in the WEF worldview (and usually earlier in their careers, hence the name of the program).

Some of the most powerful people alive have participated in this program. World leaders such as Vladimir Putin, Justin Trudeau, Emmanuel Macron and Angela Merkel, and business leaders like Bill Gates, Jeff Bezos, Mark Zuckerberg, Larry Page and Sergey Brin are all listed as YGL alumni.

How is it that the founders of Microsoft, Amazon, Facebook, and Google all attended this one elitist training seminar? And, as mentioned, it's astonishing how many of these YGLs are listed as having participated in the program well before the climax of their influence. For example, Putin graduated before he became president of Russia, Page and Brin before Google became a publicly traded company, and Gates and Merkel were in the program's inaugural year back in 1993.

Since its founding in 1993 (then it was called "Global Leaders for Tomorrow") until today, there has been a new class every year, totaling in over 1,400 YGLs. And the most recent wave of graduates is already having an impact on politics globally.

WEF doesn't discriminate based on party – it recruits politicians from both sides. This is especially true in the United States. Dan Crenshaw, Gavin Newsom, Adam Kinzinger, Pete Buttigieg, Nikki Haley, Tulsi Gabbard, Texas Congressman Colin Allred, and Phoenix Mayor Kate Gallego have all been named as YGLs. If you recognize any relatively young politicians from other nations, chances are they may also be YGLs.

For example, Trudeau, Macron, PM of New Zealand Jacinda Ardern, PM of Finland Sanna Marin, PM of Belgium Alexander De Croo and former PM of Georgia Mamuka Bakhtadze are all listed as YGLs, while President of Ukraine Volodymyr Zelenskyy, President of El Salvador Nayib Bukele and Supreme Leader of North Korea Kim Jong-Un are unspecified WEF members. Though there is no evidence yet that Rishi Sunak – the UK's newest PM – is named as a YGL, he is still a WEF member, and former PMs Boris Johnson and Tony Blair are both listed as YGL alumni.

There have been those who appeared on the YGL list who have denied their enrollment altogether. Crenshaw, for example, claimed that he was never contacted by the WEF and merely named by them as if YGL is an editorial list. Photos show YGL as an inperson training seminar. Notably, Crenshaw has not appeared in any such photos. WEF's own description of the program is as follows:

Throughout the five year programmer, YGLs are fully involved in the Forum's meetings, initiatives and research and interact with the Forum's wider multi-stakeholder community. YGLs have a powerful role in determining the community's activities. They are governed by a foundation board of respected leaders and are managed by a dynamic team of young professionals based in Geneva and China.

So, Crenshaw says that the WEF simply added him to a list without his knowing, while WEF suggests that Crenshaw's inclusion equates to having participated in a "five year programmer," and being "governed by a foundation board" and "managed" by a team in Geneva and China. That's a stark contrast. Perhaps some figures listed by WEF as YGLs may be less involved. (Note: on 11/17/2022 a representative from Rep. Crenshaw's office contacted Human Events to reiterate that the congressman did not complete such a program, has no ties to WEF, and was added to its YGL list without his approval or knowledge.)

(Note: After publication, Rep. Crenshaw's office provided Human Events with evidence of an email that appears to have been sent from the congressman's office to WEF in Feb 2019, highlighting his decision not to take part in the YGL program, and thus refuting the suggestion that he was ever a participant.)

Either way, it's alarming how many elected representatives have any ties at all to the WEF, let alone via this specific program that is designed to subvert governments around the world.

Unsurprisingly, the WEF also has its hand in media. Some of the most recognizable commentators of the last few decades are YGL listed alumni. George Stephanopoulos, Anderson Cooper, Van Jones, Andrew Ross Sorkin, Bret Stephens, Ian Bremmer, Maria Bartiromo, Sanjay Gupta and Leana Wen are all listed as YGLs.

One may be inclined to think that the WEF recruits these individuals because they are prominent members of the media. Well, Stephanopoulos (Class of '93), Van Jones (Class of '05) and Leana Wen (Class of '18) all are listed as having participated in the YGL program years before they became commentators. Wen, for example, was recruited to be a YGL because of her role as a "Professor of Health Policy." And then it just so happened that when CNN needed a token Covid expert, it chose Wen out of all the health policy academics in the country.

Notable academics and public intellectuals of the sort – "the experts" so to speak – are very often listed as YGLs. Keynesian economist Paul Krugman, "anti-racist" grifter Ibram X. Kendi, statistician and FiveThirtyEight founder Nate Silver, celeb professor Adam Grant and historian (and frequent Bilderberg attendee) Niall Ferguson are all listed as YGLs.

Other prominent YGL businessmen include Wikipedia founder Jimmy Wales, Virgin Group founder Richard Branson, Chinese billionaire Jack Ma, Moderna CEO Stephane Bancel and Salesforce founder Marc Benioff (who is also on WEF's board).

Even being born into powerful political families buys you a ticket to the YGL program. Chelsea Clinton, Alexander Soros and Nathaniel Rothschild are listed as YGLs, and Ivanka Trump is listed as an unspecified WEF member.

The WEF doesn't only recruit leaders in business and politics, but also exploits the influence of cultural icons to advance its agenda. It's not a coincidence that Leonardo DiCaprio addressed the UN on climate change in 2014 – he was listed as part of the YGL program in 2008. Or that Bono is universally recognized as an activist – he was named as part of the YGL program in 1993. Other celebrities and athletes who are YGL alumni include Wyclef Jean, Ashton Kutcher, Priyanka Chopra, Charlize Theron, Chris Tucker, Roger Federer, Megan Rapinoe, Tony Hawk, Dikembe Mutombo, Rio Ferdinand and Yo Yo Ma (who is also on WEF's board).

The most confusing aspect of it all is the listed YGLs who largely appear to stand in opposition to globalism and the WEF's agenda. For example, Hungarian PM Viktor Orban is listed as a YGL alumnus, Trump is an Agenda Contributor, and Israeli PM Bibi Netanyahu and former Brazilian President Jair Bolsonaro are unspecified WEF members.

This may surprise some, but even Elon Musk is a listed YGL, and another PayPal cofounder, Peter Thiel – who's also on the steering committee of the Bilderberg group – is also listed as a YGL. Thiel recently co-founded Strive Asset Management – an anti-ESG fund provider aimed at becoming the non-woke alternative to BlackRock – with "Woke, Inc." author Vivek Ramaswamy. Well, Ramaswamy, a very vocal opponent of ESG, is also a named YGL.

Musk, Thiel and Ramaswamy are arguably the three most influential and outspoken anti-woke, anti-globalist businessmen on the planet. Yet, all three are YGLs and just so happen to also be business partners with each other. I'm not sure what to make of that strange fact (perhaps their public opposition to the WEF agenda is in part informed by their inside exposure to it?). Whatever the reason, their connection to the WEF shouldn't be ignored – we should be able to recognize and appreciate some of the good work they are doing while reserving some skepticism given their history.

While so many of the WEF's plans for social control are out in the open for all to see, most of its YGL content and lists of graduates have mysteriously been scrubbed from its webpages in recent years. Likewise, most named YGLs have seldom commented on their experience, forcing one to ponder just how conspiratorial and immersive the program is: Is it more like what Crenshaw described – an editorial list – or more akin to WEF's own description of it as a lengthy, interactive program?

To help answer that question, I'll leave you with the words of WEF founder Klaus Schwab himself. Speaking about the YGL program at Harvard University in 2017, Schwab said:

"This notion to integrate young leaders is part of the World Economic Forum since many years. And I have to say, when I mention now names – like Mrs. Merkel, even Vladimir Putin and so on – they all have been Young Global Leaders of the World Economic Forum. But what we are very proud of now, the young generation – like Prime Minister Trudeau, President of Argentina, and so on – that we penetrate the cabinets. So yesterday I was at a reception for Prime Minister Trudeau, and I know that half of this cabinet, or even more half of this cabinet, are for our actually Young Global Leaders of the World Economic Forum... It's true in Argentina and it's true in France now – I mean with the president, with the Young Global Leader. But what is important for me, is those Young Global Leaders have an opportunity to come here and we have established a cause."

Apple Siri News for some strange reason the past four months or so has been reporting the fact that Prince Charles has decided to rid himself of many of his properties. Two weeks ago Charles had a second Coronation in Scotland, as if one wasn't enough. I was so ticked with Apple Siri News coverage of the Royal Family and their family disputes that I removed the app from my cell phone. This emphasis on Prince Charles began a month before his coronation, and almost without exception the Siri News has continued the past four months.

Inside King Charles – $25-billion real estate empire – but it's still not enough, no, not enough! 'Forbes' writer Kevin Cahill will have helped dig these property holdings out as the royals' info is not available from any FOI requests. Will Buckingham Palace be sold off by Prince Charles to boost his financial empire? Can palaces be used to house people? Just Stop Oil = Just Reduce Living Standards – Martin Armstrong suggests that without farming subsidies farmers will go bankrupt – Inside King Charles III's $25 Billion Real Estate Empire The new British monarch lords over seven palaces, 10 castles, 12 homes, 56 cottages, and 14 ancient ruins where he can hang up his crown.

Charles III's official coronation occurred May 6, but the new British monarch has already inherited a $25 billion real estate portfolio fit for a king. When he acceded the throne in September, the 73-year-old sovereign assumed control of a $42 billion empire, much of it in real estate. 'Forbes' scoured property records, annual reports, audits, archives and legislative documents to find all of the king's new possessions. His holdings span from Buckingham Palace - the official headquarters of the monarchy, which Forbes estimates is worth $4.9 billion - to Highgrove House, a country residence in Gloucestershire that Charles first purchased in 1980 for £865,000 ($3.7 million today,) now valued at $39 million. Although he has only had the crown for a few weeks, Charles is expected to break with seven generations of tradition and reject Buckingham Palace as his London residence to remain in his current home at Clarence House (estimated value: $72 million.) But he will also reportedly continue to spend some time at Highgrove. That means he'll have to pay about $740,000 in annual rent to his son William, who succeeded him as Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall and now holds Highgrove under the Duchy of Cornwall.

KING OF THESE CASTLES Charles III's $25 billion real estate empire is spread across the United Kingdom as well as two cottages in Transylvania. Here are all the properties where he can stow thrones. Those properties are part of a vast collection of at least seven palaces, 10 castles, 12 homes, 56 holiday cottages and 14 ancient ruins, per 'Forbes' count. Aside from Balmoral Castle in Scotland and Sandringham House in Norfolk, which he inherited from the Queen and now personally owns, none of these opulent residences and historic monuments are directly owned by the King. Most are held by the Crown Estate, the Duchy of Lancaster and the Duchy of Cornwall, institutions held "in right of the Crown" for the duration of his reign. Others are controlled by the monarchy itself "in trust" for his successors and the nation, while another four properties are held by two foundations which the King established when he was Prince of Wales.

Prince Charles is getting more media coverage with each passing day, and many are hinting, (hedging in my view) about Charles being the Antichrist. Author Jonathan Brentner posted a piece on the Charles Climate Doomsday Clock. I share it here.

King Charles III And His Climate Doomsday Clock: The False Predictions Designed To Deceive

By Jonathan Brentner

On June 28, 2023, King Charles III and London Mayor Sadiq Khan activated a "climate clock" with the warning that there are 6 years and 24 days left to limit global warming before it brings doom upon the world. Remarkably, the king included minutes and seconds in his countdown to the ruin of the world due to climate change.

Despite the lengthy history of planet Earth, King Charles III apparently knows to the second how much time we have left before the doom of civilization due to global warming. Amazing!

He emphasizes "global renewables," however, the means of capturing such sources of energy are not renewable. They are subject to weather conditions and highly toxic to the environment when their usefulness expires.

It's curious that the king's clock ends five months short of 2030. Why not make it line up with the UN's "7 Years of Accelerated, Transformative Action to Achieve SDGs," which extends a little beyond the start of 2030? (The SDGs are the seventeen "Sustainable Development Goals" that the UN put in place eight years ago through which they intend to establish a one-world government.)

There's no climate emergency; it's all a ruse to scare people and thereby subject them to draconian measures of the globalists, which will enable them to fulfill their dream of ruling over a worldwide empire.

The radical policies advocated by the environmental extremists neither protect nature nor do they represent a biblical worldview.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF FAILED PREDICTIONS

As we listen to climate alarmists such as King Charles III warn us of impending doom, It's essential to recognize they have a long history of making false predictions. Consider this quote from an Associated Press report published in the 'Washington Post:'

The Arctic Ocean is warming up, icebergs are growing scarcer, and in some places the seals are finding the water too hot. Reports from fishermen, seal hunters, and explorers all point to a radical change in climate conditions and hitherto unheard-of temperatures in the Arctic zone. Exploration expeditions report that scarcely any ice has been met as far north as 81 degrees 29 minutes. Within a few years it is predicted that due to the ice melt the sea will rise and make most coastal cities uninhabitable.

Although this sounds very much like it could have been written in 2023, the above quote appeared in the 'Washington Post' on November 2, 1922, one hundred years ago!

Since then, predictions of disaster because of climate change have continued unabated. The Earth Day predictions of 1970 included the end of human civilization in thirty years, with deaths due to starvation to reach one to two hundred million per year by 1980.

Al Gore received a Nobel Prize in 2007 for his prognostications of doom due to global warming. He told us that by 2014, the Antarctic and Greenland ice sheets would completely vanish, which would cause sea levels to rise twenty feet. Gore received three hundred million dollars as a result of his activism during the past twenty years, but what about his forecasts of doom? None of them happened. Instead, the Antarctic and Greenland covering of ice grew during the time that Gore said they would vanish.

The former Vice President used his newly acquired wealth to purchase a mansion near the ocean, which would've been totally destroyed had his dire predictions become reality.

THE PROPHETIC IMPLICATIONS OF THE "CLIMATE EMERGENCY" ESPOUSED BY KING CHARLES III

In previous posts, I have discussed the fallacies of the climate alarmists' beliefs. In 3 Climate Myths Spread by the Globalists, I debunk many of the warnings we hear from them. Below, I discuss the implications for biblical prophecy that are evident in King Charles' III climate clock of doom.

1. THE RAPTURE IS EVER SO CLOSE

King Charles III, like all other globalists, is obsessed with changing the world before 2030. If we didn't live at a time of the convergence of a multitude of signs clearly pointing to the nearness of the Tribulation period, this might have little significance. However, we absolutely live in just such an era and it's exceedingly meaningful for us as students of biblical prophecy.

Scripture tells us that a world government will exist during the Tribulation period, one over which the antichrist will take control. The fact that a majority of world leaders have 2030 as their goal for the implementation of a kingdom that's sounds remarkably similar tells us that Jesus' is coming for His church is very, very close. We live in the season of His appearing.

2. THE GLOBALISTS THRIVE ON CHAOS

The powerbrokers of our day know they can't institute a new world order if everyone is satisfied with the status quo; they need the upheaval of societal norms so that people will accept their extreme measures as the answer. This is why Emmanuel Macron, the President of France, did almost nothing to stop the recent mass rioting in France. As a globalist, he thrives on chaos.

It's for this same reason that they push the false climate agenda; they need much disorder, the more the better, to achieve their dreams. The madness following the Rapture will almost certainly speed up this process as it will give them the menacing instability they will need to impose their will on the nations, perhaps much sooner than 2030.

3. THE ELITE FEED ON DECEPTION

The Bible tells us that the deception that's already here will intensify during the sevenyear Tribulation. The fraud regarding the climate crisis has already reached epic proportions.

Despite the fact that several arsonists have been arrested for starting the multitude of fires in Canada that began at amazingly the same time, the official line is that they resulted from global warming. That's just one small example of the duplicity pushed on the world by those seeking to create panic with a false narrative.

Everything is precisely the opposite of how it appears. The globalists need ecological disasters to further their cause. The chemical trails we see in the skies, the varied attempts to change weather patterns, and President Biden's "recent" initiative to block to sun will not end well. Is it not suspicious that nearly all the many recent train derailments in America spill toxic chemicals creating environmental disasters? I think it is.

The blatant hypocrisy of the elite pushing the narrative of doom seems to go unnoticed by their ardent disciples. The leading climate alarmists each own several mansions, possess a great many vehicles for both land and sea, and fly everywhere in the world in their private jets. According to their own standards for saving the planet, they are far, far less considerate of the environment than the average citizen.

4. THE POWERBROKERS OF OUR DAY ARE MOTIVATED BY THE SPIRIT OF THE ANTICHRIST

We know from 2 Thessalonians 2:3-8 that the antichrist can't reveal himself as the "man of lawlessness" until after the Rapture. However, it makes sense that Satan would prepare the way for his future unveiling, which is exactly why we see the spirit of the antichrist busily at work in our world.

The elite powerbrokers of our day march in lockstep with King Charles III even though they all know his prediction of environmental doom is based on erroneous science and lies. It's all about deceiving people so they will accept the draconian and deadly measures they propose.

On May 18, 2023, the U.S. climate czar, John Kerry, stated that there must be a drastic reduction in U.S. farming in order to combat global warming. Below is a quote from him: A lot of people have no clue that agriculture contributes about 33% of all the emissions of the world. We can't get to net-zero, we don't get this job done unless agriculture is front and center as part of the solution. So all of us understand here the depths of this mission.

He says it will save the lives of many people, but in reality, these fabricated "green" policies will lead to the mass murder of tens of millions, if not many more, in just the U.S.

As reported in Daymond Duck's weekly prophecy update on Rapture Ready, according to a June 28, 2023, article on the World Net Daily (WND), the staff reported that UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres has called for the immediate and global destruction of the world's energy industry because, he claims, fossil fuels are "incompatible with human survival."

Please know that the fuels upon which the population of the world depends didn't result from decaying dinosaurs, but rather from God's gracious provision to support the current population. Billions of people depend upon the energy that comes from coal, oil, and natural gas for their survival and most would die if these sources of energy suddenly ended.

These things are truly the work of the devil whom the Lord correctly labeled as a "liar" and a "murderer" in John 8:44. This is none other than the "spirit of antichrist" that the apostle mentioned in 1 John 4:3 as already active in the world. Now that the last days have arrived, this that know and understand God's Word can't miss its increased activity.

Just like Satan himself, the spirit energizing the globalists of our day is both deceptive and murderous; please don't doubt this for a moment.

5. THE AGENDA OF THE CLIMATE ALARMISTS FORESHADOWS THE TRUMPET JUDGMENTS OF REVELATION

The last phrase of Revelation 18:11 aligns well with the deception agenda of the climate alarmists that call for draconian measures to avoid certain doom.

The nations raged, but your wrath came, and the time for the dead to be judged, and for rewarding your servants, the prophets and saints, and those who fear your name, both small and great, and for destroying the destroyers of the earth. (emphasis added)

At the time of the seventh trumpet (Revelation 11:15), the twenty-four elders worshipping God portray His wrath as "destroying the destroyers of the earth." The globalists such as King Charles III are fervently working behind the scenes so that it appears that the world needs their draconian measures to "save the planet," but just the opposite is true. They are creating the crisis to which they will have the answer.

Could it be that the ones described in Revelation 18:11 as the "destroyers of the earth" are identical to the elite of our day that tell us we must do all we can to preserve our environment? I believe so.

In this day of great deception, everything is just the opposite of what we hear from the UN, the WEF, and the deep state in America. They are all masters of deceit and slaves to the monstrous spirit of the antichrist.

Is it not also insightful that the initial trumpet judgments in Revelation 8:1-11 are aimed the environment? Just as the plagues that God sent upon the Egyptians struck at the gods that they worshipped, the Lord will also strike a blow to today's worshippers of nature that seek to usurp the Lord's place as the One who holds everything together (Colossians 1:17).

THE IMMINENT APPEARING OF THE TRUE KING

Is King Charles' III climate clock of doom prophetically significant? Yes, it's yet another reminder that the appearing of Jesus, the King of kings, is ever so close. He's coming very soon to take His church back to Heaven.

I say this because first of all, we live at a time when a great many signs of the last days are converging as never before in history, which I explain in 12 Signs the World is Running Out of Normal. The Lord is shouting to all who will listen that both His appearing and judgment on the world are imminent.

Second, King Charles' III climate countdown and the lies that support it align with what the Bible tells us about the formation of a world government in the last days. The globalists need a dire emergency in order to enslave the world's population. They have been working for a century to convince people that a worldwide environmental catastrophe will happen without their intervention.

All these things demonstrate the nearness of the seven-year Tribulation. It's during this time that the "destroyers of the earth" will be hailed as the ones saving it. The Lord will respond to the worshippers of nature by demonstrating that He is the One to be honored above everything and the only One capable of restoring nature to its former pristine condition, which He will do at His Second Coming.

It's because of all these things, and many more, that we know our deliverance from this lawless and evil world is ever so close.

How is it possible for there to be any more signs of the approaching Tribulation period than what the Lord has already provided both for believers and those in the world?

I know the majority who read this post are eagerly awaiting Jesus' appearing because you recognize the day in which we live. The Lord will richly reward your belief in what the Bible says about the season of Jesus' appearing.

ENDGAME: US FEDERAL DEBT INTEREST PAYMENTS ABOUT TO HIT $1 TRILLION

SOURCE: ZEROHEDGE

There was a shocking number in today's latest monthly US Budget Deficit report. No, it wasn't that U.S. government outlays unexpectedly soared 15% to $646 billion in June, up almost $100 billion from a year ago...

... while tax receipts slumped 9.2% from $461 billion to $418 billion, resulting in a TTM government receipt drop of over 7.3%, the biggest since June 2020 when the U.S. was reeling from the covid lockdown recession; in fact never have before tax receipts suffered such a big drop without the U.S. entering a recession.

Needless to say, surging government outlays coupled with shrinking tax revenues meant that in June, the U.S. budget deficit nearly tripled from $89 billion a year ago to $228 billion, far greater than the consensus estimate of $175 billion. One can only imagine which Ukrainian billionaire oligarch's money laundering bank account is currently enjoying the benefits of that unexpected incremental $50 billion U.S. deficit hole: we know for a fact that the FBI will never get to the bottom of that one, since they can't even figure out who dumped a bunch of blow inside the White House - the most protected and surveilled structure in the entire world.

And with the monthly deficits coming in higher than expected and also far higher than a year ago, it is also not at all surprising that the cumulative deficit 9 months into the fiscal year is already the 3rd highest on record, surpassed only by the crisis years of 2020 and 2021: at $1.393 trillion, the fiscal 2022 YTD deficit is already up 170% compared to the same period last year.

Again, while sad, none of the above numbers are surprising: they merely confirm that the U.S. is on an ever faster-track to fiscal death, but not before the Fed is forced to monetize the debt once again (one wonders what financial crisis the Jekyll Island folks will invoke this time to greenlight the next multi-trillion QE).

No, the one number that was truly shocking was found all the way on page 9, deep inside Table 3 of the latest Treasury Monthly Statement: the only highlighted below, and which shows that in the 9 months of the current fiscal year, the U.S. has already accumulated a record $652 billion in gross debt interest.

This number was more than 25% higher compared to the Interest Expense payment for the comparable period a year ago, which amounted to $521 billion.

Soaring interest rates, driven by the panicked Fed's scramble to undo its epic policy failure of 2020 and 2021 when the Fed kept rates at zero for far too long while injecting trillions into various asset bubbles, have been the key driver of the deficit, with the Federal Reserve boosting its benchmark rate by 5% since it began hiking in March last year. Five-year Treasury yields are now about 3.96%, versus 1.35% at the start of last year. As lower-yielding securities mature, the Treasury faces steady increases in the rates it pays on outstanding debt: that's right - even when the Fed starts cutting rates, due to the delay of rolling over maturing debt, actual interest payments will keep rising for the foreseeable future.

For context, the weighted average interest for total outstanding debt at the end of June was only 2.76%, a level that's not been surpassed since January 2012, according to the Treasury. That's up from 1.80% a year before, the department's data show, and if the Fed indeed keeps rates "higher for longer", the blended rate on the debt will surpass 4% in one year.

That would be a complete disaster for the U.S., and it would mean that interest payments on total U.S. debt of $32.3 trillion would hit $1.3 trillion within 12 months, potentially making interest on the debt the single biggest US government expenditure and surpassing social security!

But we don't even have to wait that long until the exploding interest on U.S. government debt becomes a major talking point ahead of the coming presidential elections. According to the St Louis Fed's FRED and the BEA, the interest payments by the Federal Government have now surpassed $900 billion for the first time ever, and within a quarter will hit probably rise above $1 trillion, a historic benchmark that will probably begin the countdown to the U.S. Minsky Moment. Source

One of the most incompetent puppets in the Biden admin (and there are countless), Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen, has played down concerns about higher rates. She has instead flagged that the ratio of interest payments to GDP, after adjustment for inflation, remains historically low. The problem with Yellen's argument is that GDP will crater after the next recession (which will also spark the next financial crisis, one which Yellen will not live to see), but U.S. debt will never again drop in either absolute or relative terms, as the good folks at the CBO have been so kind to make clear to even such intellectual midgets as the former Fed chairwoman.

In short, the endgame has now arrived, and all the U.S. can do now is rearrange the deck chairs.

To show the senseless Janet Yellen made one of the most stupid statements of our day. "Redoubling financial backing for Ukraine in its war with Russia is the "single best" way to aid the global economy," U.S. Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen said Sunday.

She added boosting emerging economies and tackling debt distress also have their role to play alongside sending billions in taxpayer dollars to Kyiv.

AFP reports Yellen used the sidelines of a G20 finance ministers' summit in India to reveal she would "push back" on criticism there was a tradeoff between aid to Ukraine and developing nations.

"Ending this war is first and foremost a moral imperative," she told reporters in Gandhinagar. "But it's also the single best thing we can do for the global economy."

Her comments on Ukraine aid came one week after former Vice President Mike Pence said during an appearance on Breitbart News Saturday that defending Ukraine is in the best interest of the U.S., even though it is not "our war."

Since the war began, the Biden administration and the U.S. Congress have directed more than $75 billion in assistance to Ukraine, which includes humanitarian, financial, and military support, according to the Kiel Institute for the World Economy, a German research institute.

Yellen also pointed to efforts to tackle debt distress faced by struggling economies, bank reform and a global tax deal, and warned it was "premature" to talk of lifting tariffs on China, the AFP report continued. This puppet of the Rothschild's reveals she is an absolute idiot by her statement and logic. Shear lunacy!

Russia's invasion of Ukraine, both global breadbaskets that together exported almost a quarter of the world's wheat supply, triggered shockwaves in economies worldwide by sending prices for food and fuel soaring.

Economic uncertainty around wheat and associated supply chain issues continue to shake the global economy as the Ukraine-Russia confrontation shows no sign of ending.

Japan's Finance Minister Shunichi Suzuki, speaking after a G7 meeting of ministers, "reconfirmed the G7's unshakeable support" for Kyiv.

"We confirmed that Russia-owned assets that are under the G7's supervision would not be transferred until Russia pays damages to Ukraine," Suzuki said, adding Moscow should also "pay long-term reconstruction costs."

"And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name." - (Revelation 13:17).

More nations rolling out digital IDs and making them mandatory for citizens to access bank accounts.

The nation of Ethiopia has announced it will make the transition to mandatory digital IDs for all citizens, with the chief enforcement tool being the major banks. Using a World Bank-supported digital ID system with standards also approved by an eight-nation working group within the United Nations, all citizens of Ethiopia will need to have a digital ID in order to use banking services in the country by 2025.

This is just the latest evidence that banks are driving the digital identity agenda. We'll break it all down in this article and show why digital identity must precede digital money in the reset to a completely digital global economy.

Biometric Update reported, "Ethiopia is implementing a World Bank-supported MOSIP-based digital ID project which intends to have all eligible citizens enrolled by 2025. The country also recently contracted IrisGuard to support benefits payments to citizens with iris biometrics."

So if you want a bank account or wish to access government benefits, you will need a digital ID in Ethiopia. This is the plan for all nations. Eventually, you will need the digital ID to buy and sell and log onto the internet.

Ethiopia follows Canada, Nigeria, China, Finland, Germany, Japan, Norway, Sweden, South Korea, and a host of other countries that have already rolled out biometric digital identities, some mandatory and some still voluntary. This puts them in compliance with United Nations Agenda 2030 Sustainable Development Goal 16.9. Most of these digital IDs apply to banking, healthcare and other services. Less than a dozen U.S. states also have issued fully digital ID drivers' licenses containing a person's facial scan, iris scan or other biometric data, although these are still voluntary and not mandatory.

The World Bank system appears to be the gold standard for a globally recognized digital identity, fulfilling the forecast more than three years ago by World Economic Forum founder Klaus Schwab that everyone would eventually have a digital identity, and that the so-called Fourth Industrial Revolution would "lead to a fusion of our physical, biological and digital identities."

According to Wikipedia, the World Bank's entire strategy is "influenced by the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals, as well as environmental and social safeguards."

It doesn't take a rocket scientist to see where the establishment power elites are heading with this. They need to get the global digital IDs in place and mandated before they roll out the new global digital money system. The two together will combine to form the crux of the global beast system.

The global movement toward digital IDs, which had largely stalled out, was catapulted forward by the Covid crisis.

In April 2022, eight U.N.-member states formed a working group on digital identity tasked with drafting "a set of high-level principles to support the development of mutually recognized and interoperable digital ID systems and infrastructure," according to a report by the Global Government Forum.

The eight nations leading the way on globalized digital IDs are Israel, New Zealand, Australia, Finland, Canada, Singapore, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom.

The working group is chaired by Australia's Digital Transformation Agency. The group was initially formed to allow its members to "share experiences and opportunities for the use of digital identity initiatives, with a focus on the response to and recovery from the impacts of COVID-19 on governments and people."

In its report, the Digital Government Exchange (DGX) Digital Identity Working Group (DIWG) said its goal is to enhance trade agreements and to "facilitate economic recovery from COVID-19, for example to support the opening of domestic and international borders".

The 11 principles call for digital ID infrastructure to be open; transparent; reusable; user-centric; inclusive and accessible; multilingual; secure and private; technologically neutral and compatible with data portability; administratively simple; able to preserve information; and effective and efficient.

"A common set of definitions and universal taxonomy for digital identity is critical to enable mutual recognition of digital identities and interoperability of digital identity systems... This set of common definitions will evolve as trust frameworks and digital identities are further developed," the report said.

The United Nations' World Food Program recently announced plans to install biometric checkpoints at food distribution centers in an effort to cut down on the high levels of theft in Ethiopia.

In a further move, the National Bank of Ethiopia announced last week that the national digital ID known as "Fayda" will be mandatory for all citizens in order to use national banking services.

The National ID Program explained the move in a July 10 press release, which states:

The first initiative is set to onboard all financial sector customers onto the digital ID platform in the upcoming fiscal year, offering a more robust and secure financial ecosystem for all parties. The purpose of this initiative will not only benefit the existing customer base, but will increase financial inclusion by removing barriers to entry. This process will follow legal and technical safeguards guided by cybersecurity and personal data protection principles enshrined within the existing legal framework.

As such, a Digital ID will serve as a primary Bank ID and will have legal acceptance in all financial institutions.

By offering a reliable and real-time identity verification system, this new digital ID platform called "Fayda" can serve as a basis for new digital products while mitigating associated financial risks.

The implementation of this National ID as a Bank ID in Ethiopia, will not only help the finance sector, it will also accelerate the country's transition towards more transparency and inclusion serving as a key pillar for national development plans and journey towards a digital economy.

Just days before this announcement the government's National ID Program began accepting registrations at eight different banks.

The department said in a statement, "The integration of Fayda ID into the existing financial service provided by banks will have a significant impact on the reduction of fraudulent activities, which is expected to enable banks to save millions in costs also related to manual operations and customer due diligence. It will also reduce the time taken to clearly identify individuals, register their data and provide a more efficient, secure, and reliable service transforming the banking ecosystem."

In an op-ed piece published in April, Nohaila Ibn El Farouk for the Addis Standard noted that "change is coming to Ethiopian banking," writing:

"Digital banking solutions can also serve as a catalyst for turning the tide of what has long been the elephant in the room when it comes to African banking: the large percentage of the population is unbanked."

"Like in many other countries in Africa, only a minority of Ethiopian adults have registered for any sort of bank account, but digital banking has proven that it can quickly redress the imbalance."

"Tech solutions are likely to attract not only the expected crowd of young, tech-savvy customers, but also those living in remote or rural areas, where an internet connection is easier to get hold of than a brick-and-mortar bank. With 75% of its population unbanked, the potential for growth in Ethiopian banking is immense."

"Change is coming to Ethiopian banking, bringing with it both risk and opportunity. It is up to the country's authorities, financial sector, and general population to seize the reins of this transformation and use it to shape the future of Ethiopia. How long until we hear the lion of Ethiopian finance roar again?"

Louise Creffield Save Our Rights
Bank Accounts CANCELLED

This is what Americans that fail to conform to the CBDC "Digital Dollar" can look forward to as the draconian measures will result in being exiled to the Global Banking System as Revelation 13 tells us. A few weeks ago Nigel Farage, a political figure opposing the UK was frozen out from his bank accounts. The lady mentioned in this story below was just a common activist seeking to protest the UK policies and now has been removed from the system.

The Closing of people's bank accounts: Louise Creffield from Save Our Rights on how they got nearly a million people out on the street of London during the 2021 Lockdowns and the campaign groups bank account has been shut down. Our History – On 16th April 2020, Louise May Creffield was spending the day with her children in the woods and she felt a calling. A calling to make a real difference by utilizing the skills and knowledge she had gained from working in the official political system. Louise went searching for a group that was taking action. She felt it necessary to highlight that parliamentary protocols had gone out of the window, that our Human Rights were being infringed upon and to raise the voice of those suffering as a result, particularly children, the vulnerable and those in domestic violence situations. Not being able to find such a group, Louise started her own group on Facebook called Save Our Rights UK. Within a few days this group had reached 1,000 members and now, two years later, her organization has over 100,000 followers. Being eager and proactive Louise arranged the first protest on 20th April 2020, just four days later, on Brighton beach. Louise had never organized a protest before but she doesn't let that sort of technicality stop her. Six people turned up and they went shouting down the seafront as she didn't even think to bring a megaphone.

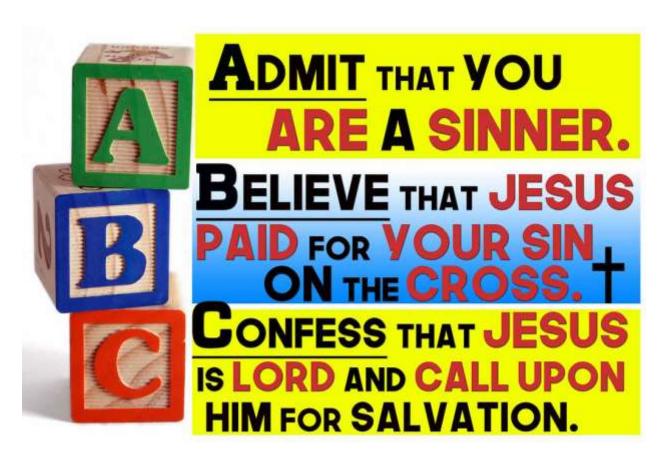

This only grew weekly gaining more momentum and more support. This evolved into huge London rallies with up to hundreds of thousands of people hitting the streets almost monthly. In addition, Save Our Rights UK has run campaigns on issues such as the Covert Human Intelligence Sources Bill, Medical Freedom, the Police, Crime, Sentencing and Courts Bill and more utilizing bespoke online technology to amplify people's voices to a level that means they cannot go unheard.

Prepare yourself and your loved ones where you want to be during the next seven years of the Great Tribulation! The world is already getting a taste of what lies just ahead. What is coming is chaos, tribulation unlike anything known to man, enslavement and total control. The only escape possible is ask God to save you from the wrath to come!

The "Key" days are: 9th of Av on July 26th and Rosh HaShanah on September 15th.

Days to July 26th as of 7/18/23 – 8 Days
Days to September 15th as of 7/18/23 – 59 Days

Praise God!

Blessings in the Precious Name of Jesus Christ,
