Bill Gates Orders Govt's To Blacklist Citizens Who Share 'Non-Mainstream' Content Online

Fact checked

February 11, 2024 Baxter Dmitry

Bill Gates' Microsoft is now threatening to disable the computers of users who share so-called “misinformation” online as Bill Gates and the WEF continue gearing up for the 2024 election season in the only way they know how – by working on an authoritarian plan to censor all opposition, criminalize so-called “misinformation”, steal the US election, and install puppet governments in penetrated liberal democracies around the world.

The elite know the people are rising up against them and like cornered rats they are now desperate to silence the opposition and crush any dissent against their totalitarian vision of a New World Order.

For those who are paying attention, this dystopian vision is playing out in front of our eyes, and it is our responsibility to stop these tyrants in their tracks.

Bill Gates understands better than most of the elite that the people are not going to be satisfied with prison time for his crimes against humanity and the Microsoft founder has become increasingly bullish about eliminating freedom of speech on the internet.

But that hasn't stopped Gates traveling the world on his private jet and complaining about “misinformation” to anybody who will listen. Here he is in Australia where he told the state-funded ABC that he was working with tech platforms to eradicate social media users who speak out against his agenda.

Microsoft CEO Satya Nadella told NBC's Lester Holt this week that people sharing “misinformation” should not be protected by freedom of speech laws. In his opinion, the world needs a new Geneva Convention to deal with anybody who dares to share information that exposes the global elite.

That's right – the Microsoft CEO is comparing free speech on the internet with the international law that regulates armed conflict.

Listen carefully to his words – the Microsoft CEO actually admits this is part of the elite's vision of a New World Order.

Bill Gates and his cronies are not just talking about clamping down on free speech. As we speak they are quietly, deceitfully putting the dominoes in place to completely obliterate the legal rights of ordinary people to dissent against their evil agenda.

Welcome to the UK where it's now official government policy that independent news and ordinary social media users can't publish "misinformation", but The Guardian, the BBC, Disney and Netflix can.

Yes, it's true – the recently signed "Online Safety Act" brands the publication of "false information" a criminal offense punishable by up to a year in prison... unless you're an mainstream media outlet, in which case it's totally legal.

If you think even the corrupt and bloated global elite that rules over us would never dare be that blatant, take a look at section 179 making it illegal to publish false information with intent to cause harm: ...and then look at section 180, which exempts all mainstream media outlets from this new law:

...and that's without even getting into OfCom's "select committee", or how they choose to define "misinformation" (s. 152). Hint: it's anything that Bill Gates and the global elite disagree with, and especially anything that exposes their agenda.

Welcome to the modern definition of "freedom of speech", where the mainstream media are directly and explicitly permitted to "knowingly publish false information with intent to cause non-trivial harm", while the independent media and people like you can be sent to jail for a year for calling out their lies.

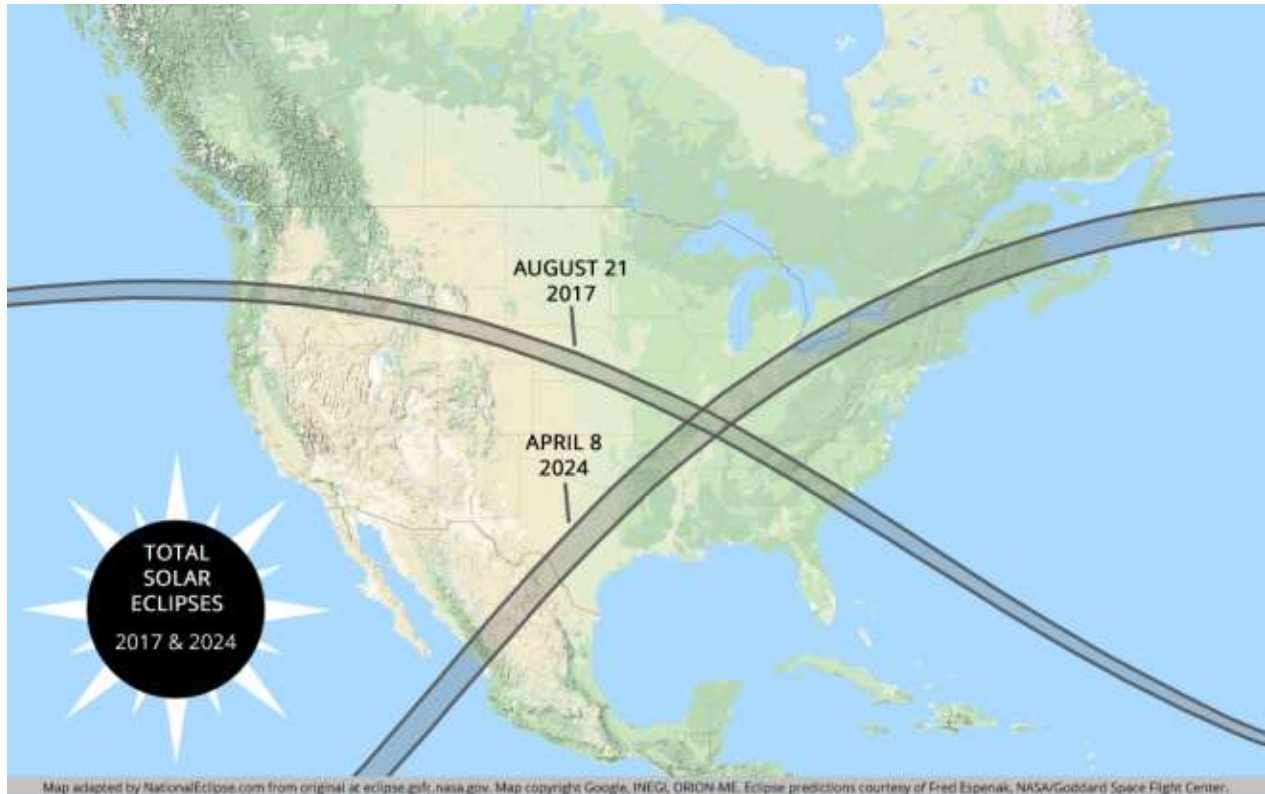

It's not just the UK. The elite are tightening the screws in the U.S. too. The Big Tech Senate hearings started last week, and social media executives are already throwing their support behind the new "Kids Online Safety Act".

With the EU's own Digital Services Act coming into force in Europe later this month, and all the focus on "misinformation and disinformation" at the WEF's Davos summit in January, we can see the long-promised crackdown on internet free speech across the whole world is about to kick into gear.

We are living in disturbing times. As those who have survived the mass formation psychosis and seen through the psy-ops, it is no exaggeration to say the future of humanity now depends on the decisions we make from this moment forward.

After all, we can't say we weren't warned about their authoritarian dreams.

The Biblical Significance of the August 21, 2017 and April 8, 2024 Total Solar Eclipses, and the Warnings of Coronavirus, War, Earthquakes and Famine

Note: This page compiles multiple commentaries together. The first commentary originally appeared in the August 18, 2017, edition of 'Koenig's Eye View' from the White House. Some additional comments from the 2020-2022 time frame have been added below after the end of the first commentary. Another commentary from April 15, 2022 is also included further below as well as some newer comments.

The August 21 total solar eclipse in the United States and the numerous biblical parallels to Israel

Bill Koenig: The following was prepared by my assistant Max Obeidin. To say the least, this is very interesting and fascinating information.

The Biblical Significance of the August 21 total solar eclipse

- The eclipse will produce a 67-mile-wide path across America; 1967 was the year Israel regained Judea, Samaria and East Jerusalem. The property lines are often called the pre-67 lines in peace talks.
- The maximum level of eclipse coverage will be over Washington, DC at 2:42 PM (about 81 percent). UN Resolution 242 calls for Israel to give up land for an Arab state that is Judea, Samaria and East Jerusalem. The resolution is the foundation for the peace talks.

- The sun will set in Jerusalem at the time the eclipse's shadow of totality arrives in Oregon on August 21.
- The eclipse line divides the land of the U.S.; the Israeli-Palestinian peace process calls for the land of Israel to be divided
- The paths of the August 21, 2017 and April 8, 2024 total solar eclipses create a huge X, with a phase of totality of 9,000 square miles the size of New Jersey. Israel is often said to be the size of New Jersey.

From Max Obeidin:

In last week's new report, we shared a commentary by Anne Graham Lotz called "Is God's Judgment Coming on America?" about the upcoming total solar eclipse on August 21. In Anne's commentary

(<http://www.annegrahamlotz.org/2017/08/07/gods-judgment-coming-america/>)

She linked to a sermon by Australian pastor Steve Cioccolanti where he discussed the eclipse. One of the things that he mentioned is that zone of totality first arrives in Oregon at 17:16 UT (or 10:16 AM PDT), which is the same time the sun sets in Jerusalem at 7:16 PM. But there are at least a few other significant facts about the eclipse that seem to relate to the US role with Israel.

The National Eclipse Blog says, "From Oregon to South Carolina, the eclipse will trace a 67-mile-wide path across the country and millions of Americans will witness a once-in-a-lifetime event as the moon passes between the earth and the sun and day turns to night for up to almost three minutes."

(<https://nationaleclipse.wordpress.com/2016/06/28/x-marks-the-spot-two-total-solar-eclipses-in-seven-years/>).

Other sources have also noted that the path of the eclipse averages 67 miles wide. This 67-mile-wide 'line' so-to-speak essentially cuts the United States in half at a diagonal angle, dividing the land into two parts.

In the year 1967 Israel regained control of the eastern half of Jerusalem, as well as the Gaza Strip, West Bank, Golan Heights, and the Sinai Peninsula (although Sinai was later given back to Egypt). People that call for a two-state plan often mention the pre-war 1967 borders that existed before Israel regained control of Jerusalem and those other areas, sometimes referring to them as the '67 lines. While our president is hoping to make the 'ultimate deal' for a two-state plan which would involve dividing Jerusalem and Israel based on using the '67 lines as a starting point, America is symbolically being divided by a '67 line. This seems to be very significant. The path of the 2017 eclipse also looks like it is sloping downward since it moves from the Northwest to the Southeast. Even this shape could possibly have a significance. In economics, when a line appears on a graph in this shape it is typically used to show a decline in something. It also looks like a slash mark across America, which is often used to negate something (i.e. think of a no eating symbol on a bus).

Washington, DC is not in the path of totality of the eclipse. However, there is another interesting fact which may be symbolic.

According to timeanddate.com (<https://www.timeanddate.com/eclipse/in/usa/washington-dc?iso=20170821>), the eclipse reaches its maximum level of coverage over Washington, DC (of about 81%) at 2:42 PM. In 1967, the UN Security Council passed Resolution 242 which called for “withdrawal of Israel armed forces from territories occupied in the recent conflict.”

Not only is there the concern that this eclipse could be an indication of God’s judgment, including for the U.S. role in the peace process, there is also further concern because another solar eclipse will happen approximately seven years later April 8, 2024. When you take the paths of the phase of totality of these two eclipses and cross them together, it makes a large ‘X’ over America which is centered close to Carbondale, Illinois. What makes it even more significant is the size of the area where the paths of totality cross. National Eclipse Blog describes it as such, “Because the 2017 eclipse travels across the country from northwest to southeast and the 2024 eclipse makes its way through the nation from southwest to northeast, the two paths cross each other and create a zone of overlapping totality of almost 9,000 square miles, or roughly the size of New Jersey.” (<https://nationaleclipse.wordpress.com/2016/06/28/x-marks-the-spot-two-total-solar-eclipses-in-seven-years/>).

The size of Israel is often compared to the size of New Jersey. Many pro-Israel speakers will distinctly say that Israel is “about the size of New Jersey.”

An ‘X’ over something is often used as a symbol of rejection. What does it mean for America when these two eclipses that are about seven years apart have paths of totality that form an ‘X’ over America with an area of overlap that is close in size to Israel?

While there are certainly other factors that are leading our nation further into God’s judgment, could the two eclipses be a warning that the tipping point for judgment is touching the land of Israel?

Even if this is so, as believers in Jesus we cannot live under a spirit of fear. One of the most amazing things to reflect on about these eclipses is that God already had these celestial events planned even before he set the sun, the earth, and the moon into their orbits. And even though the warning of judgment is a cause for concern and prayer about America, there is also something that we that live for Jesus can take comfort in. And that is that God is sovereign over the events of the Universe. He already knew before the world was created how all these things would take place. He knew the timing, locations, and parameters of these events. Not only did He know them, but He was the One that ordained and orchestrated these events according to His divine and sovereign plans. And this is a good lesson for our lives.

Do we trust that the God who set the sun, the earth, and the moon into their orbits and planned these celestial events out plans our lives with perfect knowledge and understanding? Do we believe that if we let God guide our steps that He will orchestrate them in a way that is in perfect alignment with His sovereign will? And do we trust that even in the midst of any upcoming judgment that our nation may face, that God can give us the strength to focus our eyes on Jesus and to do our part to the do the Lord's work?

There is indeed concern about what is coming to America. And this means that we must pray for God's mercy, pray for our own safety and the safety of others, and especially that we pray for the salvation of those that do not know Jesus. And we must share the truth of God's word and the Gospel when it comes to our individual and national accountability for sin and the need to repent, and we must also share God's biblical truth about not dividing the land of Israel. But we should do this with confident eyes on Jesus. When judgment comes, it will shake America, but Jesus will never be shaken! We will do our best to overcome what we may face nationally and individually if we are confident in and established firmly on Christ the Solid Rock!

UPDATE: Additional comments by Max Obeidin in 2021 (with some edits and additions in 2022).

Here are some additional details in reference to the original commentary from 2017 along with some new information.

The goal in the original commentary was to take a thorough look at the symbolism of what God might be saying to America through the sign of the eclipse and especially to point out the message God was sharing about not dividing Israel's land. The path of totality of the 2017 eclipse drew a line across the United States that traced a path all the way from Oregon to South Carolina. A unique thing about it was that the shadow of totality only passed over the United States and no other nation. The sign among other things seemed (and still seems) to be a warning of potential judgment coming if the United States continued to take part in the division of the land of Israel.

Reflecting on what has happened since the 2017 eclipse, it seems that the eclipse distinctly warned of the coming Coronavirus pandemic. In the original commentary further above, a post by Anne Graham Lotz from August 7, 2017, was referenced called, "Is God's Judgment Coming on America?" In that post was a link to a sermon by Australian pastor Steve Cioccolanti in which he gave an analysis of the eclipse and what he felt it could mean for America.

(Link here: <https://youtu.be/-ZvlibUAY2o>).

Here are two of the significant things that he mentioned about the 2017 eclipse: 1.) the symbolic connection to the 1918 eclipse [31:50 in the sermon] and 2.) the possibility that the 2017 eclipse could be an indication of a coming pandemic [33:40].

One major significance about the 1918 eclipse and the 2017 eclipse was that they shared a very similar path to each other. Both of them traced a path of totality from the Northwest to the Southeast in the United States without touching other nations (except the Bahamas in 1918). Some people noticed the similarity in 2017 and even pointed out that the last time America had a coast-to-coast eclipse had been almost a century before in 1918. So, what is the significance of the paths of the two eclipses when compared to one another? The answer in part at least is that they are both related to a worldwide pandemic. From 1918 and through 1920, the world was plagued by the horrible Spanish flu. Some estimates say that tens of millions of people died during that outbreak. The 2017 eclipse seems to have been an indicator of the coming Coronavirus later in President Trump's term given that the eclipse approximately paralleled the path of the 1918 American eclipse which occurred at the time of the Spanish Flu outbreak and also because in a total solar eclipse the sun's hidden corona appears, which may have been symbolic of the coming Coronavirus.

To expand on the original comments from 2017, there seems to be a two-fold message in what God was (and still is) saying to America. One message is not to divide the land of Israel and that there will be judgment if the United States takes part in dividing the land of Israel and/or restraining Israel from exercising the right to continue to annex land. The other message is the need for the United States to repent of sin in general. Both of these messages have validity. If America does not divide the land and does not hinder Israel from annexation, the nation will still face judgment if it does not repent of its national sins as well as individuals repenting of individual sins. Likewise, even if the nation repents of national and individual sins and turns back to God, it will still face judgment if it continues to take part in the division of the land of Israel. If the nation fails to heed to God's warning in both messages, then it only will make the degree of judgment more severe.

At the same time, there has also been a judgment on the nations of the world. Even though the United States has been the hardest hit by Coronavirus as far as the number of total people passing away, the whole world has also been affected. In that sense, the 2017 eclipse was also a warning to the entire world.

In a sermon in 2017, Mark Biltz said the path of the eclipse was 70 miles wide and that the number 70 is symbolic of the nations. In Anne Graham Lotz's post, she also noted how the solar eclipse was a sign to the nations. As was stated above, the average width of totality was 67 miles (as reported by the National Eclipse Blog), and symbolizes Israel and the peace process. However, the rounded figure of 70 miles (as reported by NASA) to represent the nations is also valid. Both of the numbers are symbolic. Both of the numbers have to do with the warning God was giving. God was using the symbolism to call all of the nations of the world to repentance of national sins, as well as to warn all the nations of the world that there are consequences for dividing the land of Israel.

Even though the 1918 eclipse happened over America, the pandemic affected the entire world. It is the same today. The 2017 eclipse happened over America, but the pandemic has affected the entire world. The key difference is that in 1918 the eclipse followed the beginning of the outbreak by several months. Then the outbreak continued for about two more years. In the case of the 2017 eclipse, it foreshadowed the outbreak which would start a little more than two years later in late 2019. The outbreak has lasted into 2022, and it is possible some effects could last much longer especially if the virus mutations become cyclical.

In 2017, it was not fully clear as to the exact nature of the judgment that would be coming. There were many possibilities, but it was difficult to know just exactly what would happen. Although in hindsight, it seems that there was a specific symbolism given related to the current pandemic in the picture of the total solar eclipse and not just because of the path of totality. So, what happens in a total solar eclipse? Along a very specific path, the moon temporarily blocks the full disk of the sun. At that moment, a part of the sun is visible that cannot normally be seen from earth with the unaided eye. That part of the sun extends outward and away from the main disk of the sun. It is called the solar corona. The path of the eclipse in 2017 was indicative of a pandemic, and at the same time the solar corona was visible along the path of totality that swept across the land. Now, there is a virus with corona in its name that has swept across America. The symbolism of the solar corona pointed to the Coronavirus. Here are some pictures of the eclipse compared to some graphics from U.S. government websites so that you can see the picture of the solar corona and how it related to the Coronavirus.

Note: Coronavirus images are from US Government websites.
 Here are some updated comments in regard to some of the things that were stated in the original commentary.

Statement: "The path of the 2017 eclipse also looks like it is sloping downward since it moves from the Northwest to the Southeast. Even this shape could possibly have a significance. In economics, when a line appears on a graph in this shape it is typically used to show a decline in something."

The Coronavirus has affected the economy in ways that many people would not have expected. One interesting thing about the 2017 eclipse is that the shape of the eclipse path looks somewhat like an economics graph. In the original commentary above, the path was referenced as possibly meaning some type of economic decline in America. If you look at a stock graph for instance, you will see that a line with a downward slope means a reduction in value. Also, from an economic perspective, the decline can also be thought of as a decline in prosperity in addition to economic value. Even though the government has taken unprecedented steps to try to stimulate the economy, this has come at the cost of trillions of new dollars added to America's national debt. Also, with inflation so high, the real value of dollars continues to decrease.

The line that divides America could also possibly have meant that a spirit of division was coming onto the land in a more pronounced way, which seems to have happened at the same time as the Coronavirus.

Statement: "While there are certainly other factors that are leading our nation further into God's judgment, could the two eclipses be a warning that the tipping point for judgment is touching the land of Israel?"

A key thing to note about the eclipse and the Coronavirus, is that judgment for the U.S. role in the peace process is a major factor, but it is not the only factor. The phrase "tipping point" is also akin to the phrase "the straw that broke the camel's back." When you study the pattern of judgment related to violating the Abrahamic covenant and attempting to divide the land of Israel, you will find that God often deals with other sins at the same time he is allowing the judgment to come related to attempting to divide the land of Israel. When Hurricane Katrina hit New Orleans in 2005 after the disengagement of the Gaza Strip and Samaria, it hit the city of New Orleans right before they were about to have their annual Southern Decadence gay festival. It also damaged a lot of the casinos along the Gulf Coast. Yet, the ferocity and intensity of Hurricane Katrina as a whole was very strongly rooted in the United States' push for the peace plan and the disengagement of the Gaza Strip.

A number of people are saying that God is using the Coronavirus and the disruption it is causing to call our nation and the world for that matter into repentance for sinning against God's moral laws. This also seems to be true. The fact that there is a strong connection between the peace plan and the timing of the Coronavirus outbreak does not limit what God wants to do with this situation to call people and nations into repentance. Both of those factors are true. Neither one is exclusive of the other. While this newer part of the commentary focuses on the eclipse, the peace plan and the connection to the Coronavirus, the aspects of God calling the nations to repentance for violating his moral law cannot be ignored. As Mark Biltz has pointed out before, there was a significant total solar eclipse that passed over Nineveh before the prophet Jonah prophesied of its impending judgment. Although, the fact that God was giving the people the warning through Jonah indicated that God was willing to relent if the people were willing to repent. Jeremiah 18:18 says, "and if that nation I warned repents of its evil, then I will relent and not inflict on it the disaster I had planned" (NIV). However, there are times when repentance will not necessarily prevent all judgment, especially if only certain sins are repented of, while others are left alone.

Statement: "When judgment comes, it will shake America, but Jesus will never be shaken!"

The sign of the eclipse seemed to be a significant warning of judgment, but it was not fully clear at that time exactly what would happen. It was understandable that some people were concerned that there would be some kind of event or multiple events that would shake America. A number of people in 2020 were saying that America is being shaken as the Coronavirus affected the country. This also likewise has affected many other countries in the world. Some people have referenced Hebrews 12:26-27, which states, "Whose voice then shook the earth: but now he hath promised, saying, Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but also heaven. And this word, Yet once more, signifieth the removing of those things that are shaken, as of things that are made, that those things which cannot be shaken may remain" (KJV). While the ultimate context and fulfillment of this verse is focused on the the Lord's judgment at the end of the world, it is still true that we are indeed facing a great shaking in the world right now.

"Not only is there the concern that this eclipse could be an indication of God's judgment, including for the U.S. role in the peace process, there is also further concern because another solar eclipse will happen approximately seven years later April 8, 2024."

The fact that the 2017 and 2024 eclipses cross the same place approximately seven years apart also seems very significant. Because of the significance of the seventieth week of Daniel, which many people interpret as the 7-year Tribulation period, it catches our ears anytime we hear anything about a 7-year period in conjunction with a possible peace deal involving Israel. While the time period between the two eclipses is technically 4 and half months short of 7 years, it is still natural to notice the 7-year difference between 2017 and 2024 when you look at the year numbers on the Gregorian calendar. Even though this current 7-year period does not seem to be the actual seventieth week in Daniel, there could have been some symbolism here in how the two eclipses related to the peace process.

Another significant thing about this 7-year time period is how it relates to the previous Presidential term and the current Presidential term. The year 2017 was the first year of Donald Trump's Presidential term. The year 2024 will be the fourth year of the current Presidential term. As of January 20, 2021, Donald Trump is no longer in office and Joe Biden is serving as President of the United States. Interestingly enough, there was also a total solar eclipse at the exact halfway point between the 2017 and 2024 eclipses. The eclipse on December 14, 2020, did not pass directly over any U.S. territories, but it still seems to be significant since occurred on the same day that the electoral college was meeting in the various states to cast their votes for president. So, the three eclipses together seem to have a symbolic meaning relating to the two presidential terms.

While the warning of a pandemic in the 2017 eclipse is evident now, there is more to the potential coming judgment that the 2017 eclipse indicated than simply the Coronavirus. Steve Cioccolanti has mentioned the possibility of a significant earthquake or series of earthquakes, which is very relevant given the recent earthquakes that have happened in the United States. If you look at the linked video that Cioccolanti had put online, you can see how the path of totality of the eclipse passed over several earthquake zones. One very significant thing is that the place where the paths of totality of the 2017 and 2024 eclipses cross each other is the area of the New Madrid earthquake zone. As mentioned in the 2017 commentary above, the area where these paths cross around Carbondale, Illinois covers an area of land that is similar to the size of Israel. Much of the information about specific events recorded in 'Eye to Eye: Facing the Consequences of Dividing Israel' is focused on events that happened starting with the "Madrid Peace Process" in 1991 and subsequent peace efforts. The symbolic nature of the "New Madrid" earthquake zone in connection with the eclipses could be a possible warning of a significant earthquake that might take place in this region if the United States continues to take part in a peace process that would divide Israel. A major earthquake in this region would have the potential to affect large cities like St. Louis, Memphis, and possibly even Nashville. It remains to be seen whether this would be something that would take place around the time of the 2024 eclipse or if this specific warning could be related to something else that might happen several more years down the road after that. Since the path of the 2017 eclipse also passed over several earthquake zones, the warning of a possible earthquake is not only limited to this area. There could be significant events in other parts of the country. A large earthquake off either the West Coast or the East Coast could potentially trigger a tsunami that could do significant damage to low-lying cities on the coast that was affected.

Also, there is a warning of a potential significant military conflict or war that may be coming at some point in the future based on the pattern of the August 21, 2017 date, which corresponded with the new moon that indicated the start of the Hebrew month of Elul. An eclipse occurred in 1914 on this same date on both the Gregorian and Hebrew calendars. Mark Biltz has pointed out that the beginning of the Hebrew month of Elul starts a 40-day period of repentance leading to Yom Kippur. So, the 2017 eclipse was definitely a call to repentance. The 1914 eclipse seems to have been connected to World War I, and the warning in relation to the 2017 eclipse seems to relate to the pattern of war that happened in 1914 and to be an indication that the 2017 eclipse was also warning of war. The 1914 eclipse passed directly over several countries in Europe and the Middle East and may have implications for future military conflicts that involve these countries. The 1914 path of totality passed over what today are the countries of Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Belarus, Ukraine, Iran, and Pakistan, among others, and essentially drew a line between most of the NATO countries and Russia. It is possible there could be conflict in other places as well.

We have to continue to pray for our nation as well as the world to repent. We also need to repent in our own individual lives. Judgment does not have to come. National judgment comes when a nation and the individuals in that nation disobey God. When Jonah gave the warning to Nineveh, they repented. Then God relented of the judgment he was going to bring on the nation. The challenge we have now though, is that we are already experiencing one layer of judgment (but there is more to come than just the Coronavirus if we do not repent). We also have to be ready to cling to Jesus no matter what, especially if things continue to progress the way they are. While God is giving America a chance to repent, the general trend of our society over the last several decades has been to move further and further away from God and the truth of His Word. While God has still been granting America time to repent, at least as of now the nation as a whole has not repented. So, we need to be preparing ourselves spiritually to endure whatever we have to until the Lord comes. At the same time, we need to remember the promise from His Word, “For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind” (2 Timothy 1:7). Many people would say we have a lot to fear, but we have to learn to trust in God even when the world around us is in fear. We have to live our lives and make our decisions in wisdom rather than a spirit of fear.

Controligarchs: Control freaks and billionaires who think the world is overpopulated

Seamus Bruner, the Director of Research at the Government Accountability Institute, joined the First Things podcast to discuss his new book ‘Controligarchs: Exposing the Billionaire Class, their Secret Deals, and the Globalist Plot to Dominate Your Life’

Oligarchs are typically extremely wealthy people with a close relationship with the government. Recently we’ve heard the term “Big Tech oligarchs” referring to the wealthiest in Silicon Valley, Bruner explained.

What makes Controligarchs different from oligarchs is that they really do want to control every aspect of our lives.

“These people have like a god complex but on steroids,” Bruner said.

“Of the 3,100 or so billionaires in the world, there’s only about 30 in this book [Controligarchs] ... People like Bill Gates, Mark Zuckerberg, Jeff Bezos, George Soros ... and his son Alex Soros – these guys use their wealth to do not-so-great things,” Bruner told host of First Things Mark Bauerlein.

He crunched the numbers and found that these billionaires in some cases have doubled their net worth since the beginning of 2020. “Mark Zuckerberg went from $60 billion or so to almost $120 billion today through the pandemic because everyone was locked down, stayed at home and was scrolling through Facebook ... and Jeff Bezos close to doubled his net worth,” he said.

It's not surprising that while small businesses were closed and schools were closed etc. online businesses would soar. But what is surprising is Bill Gates and his takeover of farmland.

"They used the pandemic, in the words of Klaus Schwab the World Economic Forum founder, as an opportunity. The pandemic was an opportunity to rejigger society and 'build back better' in a 'greener' way," Bruner said.

"People didn't really understand in July 2020 when Klaus Schwab announced 'The Great Reset' what a pandemic had to do with climate change. But we're starting to see that 'climate change' is just the next crisis they want to leverage as an opportunity to not just get richer but to construct systems of tyrannical control."

The systems of tyrannical control, Bruner explained, include food control, energy control, electric vehicles, cell or mobile phones, the Internet of Things, smart cities and financial control.

Controligarchs are Depopulationists

The inaugural meeting of the Good Club took place in 2009 at Rockefeller University in Manhattan, New York. The Good Club is the name given to the tiny global elite of billionaire "philanthropists." Some of the members are familiar figures such as Bill Gates, George Soros, Warren Buffett, Oprah Winfrey, David Rockefeller and Ted Turner. But there are others, too, like business giants Eli and Edythe Broad, who are equally wealthy but less well known. All told, at the time its members were worth $125bn.

"Bill Gates, George Soros and David Rockefeller are kind of like the three co-hosts [of the first meeting of the Good Club]," Bruner said. "They invited half a dozen or a dozen of their billionaire buddies ... They all got together in the spring of 2009."

"The context is the tail end of the global financial crisis ... they could sense that the 'peasants' were about to get unruly ... The other part [of the context] is that Barack Obama has just been elected president [and] a lot of people at the Good Club meeting in New York had done a lot to get him there, George Soros especially, so they wanted to leverage the Obama opportunity to their advantage."

At this meeting, Bill Gates suggested that they find an umbrella cause that they could unite their resources around to solve. They could have picked, for example, malaria, poverty, starvation or climate change as causes to unite their resources around. But "this meeting was all about solving the problem, in their minds, of overpopulation," Bruner said. The Good Club is all about pouring money into projects that ensure there are fewer people in the world. "Their way of helping humanity is to make sure there is less of it," Bruner said.

“Most of these [Controligarchs] in this book are sort of these Malthusian, overpopulation types who think that the Earth is overpopulated ... That’s a myth, it’s never been proven conclusively that the world is overpopulated.”

“There’s a lot of evidence to the contrary, that [the world] can hold a lot more people than [today’s 8 or 9 billion]. Bill Gates says we need to cut that by 15%. Ted Turner, the founder of CNN, is a little more extreme – he thinks that under 2 billion is the ideal population of the planet. Other World Economic Forum agenda setters, Jane Goodall ... says closer to 500 million. They haven’t publicized what they think is the ideal total global population should be but it’s a lot less, billions less.”

Controligarchs are Heavily Invested in Digital IDs

Bill Gates is heavily invested in digital identities (“IDs”) through various projects for digitising and creating central databases that hold every piece of information about us, Bruner said.

In 2016, the UN held its inaugural ID2020 Summit to discuss how to provide a unique digital identity to everyone on the planet by the year 2020. In 2017, Accenture partnered with Microsoft and Avanade to provide blockchain and biometric technologies to support ID2020. In 2019, Microsoft joined the ID2020 Alliance.

“All the Big Tech, all the Controligarchs, as I call them, poured their money into ID2020,” Bruner said. “And the supranational organizations – the World Health Organization and the United Nations – were all very on board with this ... digital IDs would be a great way to keep track of people’s vaccination records – they said this before the pandemic,” Bruner said.

“This digital ID can essentially become like a Chinese-style social credit score where if you are in the wrong caste of society – you’re among the unvaccinated, let’s say – you’re not going to be able to access goods and services ... If you don’t comply with some government mandate ... your digital ID will block entry for you.”

In November 2023, the 50-in-5 campaign was launched. It aims to implement digital public infrastructure in 50 countries by 2028. Digital public infrastructure is an underlying network of components such as digital payments, ID, and data exchange systems, which is a critical accelerator of the UN’s Sustainable Development Goals (“SDGs”). 50-in-5 is a “country-led” advocacy campaign in collaboration with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

“We are just around the corner from this becoming not an optional thing,” Bruner said.

“These people have like a god complex but on steroids,” he added.

Globalists aiming to “peacefully” depopulate six billion people with mass euthanasia

02/09/2024 // Ethan Huff

The powers that be are anxious to finally achieve their long-envisioned new world order, which for them means a whole lot fewer people roaming the planet.

Over the years, the true plot was buried in all sorts of deceptive narratives ranging from “climate change” and holes in the ozone layer to simple messaging that people are having “too many” babies for the planet to handle. In all of the narratives, the true underlying goal was always the same: mass depopulation.

One of the latest more-explicit calls for genocide came from Dennis Meadows of the globalist-led Club of Rome, who stated in no uncertain terms what the globalist plan for the world entails:

"We want to have freedom and we want to have high standards, so we're going to have a billion people. We're now at seven, so we have to get back down. I hope that this can be slow – relatively slow – and can be done in a way that is relatively equal."

In other words, “we,” meaning the top 0.1 percent of the world's upper crust, want to live in a world without all of the rest of us “useless eaters.” Such a world would have very “high standards,” as opposed to today's low standards with so many extra people, so something has to change, in Meadows' view.

Not only did Meadows not beat around the bush concerning his intentions with the above statement, he also threw out some precise numerals illustrating just how many people have to go in order for he and the rest of the globalists to achieve their long-awaited paradise on earth.

"He wants the global population to go from 7 billion to 1 billion!" writes Daniel Bobinski on his “Keep the Republic” Substack. "He wants 6 billion people to disappear – equally. He also said he wants it to happen 'peacefully,' as in, 'without violence' ... Now, how might that happen?"

(Related: Canada, which has some of the world's most liberal euthanasia laws, now allows for the killing of infants and babies through its euthanasia program.)

Ready for the soft kill

Back in 2010, Mark Notaras and Darek Gondor of United Nations University (UNU) wrote a piece about Meadows explaining his plans to limit population growth in order to “save the world.”

Meadows, a professor and co-author of “The Limits to Growth,” made statements back then about how mass depopulation is the only way to ensure that the planet will remain inhabitable moving into the future.

"If the present trends in world population, industrialization, pollution, food production and resource depletion continue unchanged, the limits to growth on this planet will be reached sometime within the next 100 years," Meadows said at the time.

"Today, we are at a point in human history where habits that once worked well don't work anymore."

It has been nearly 14 years since Meadows was quoted by these two UNU writers as having made such statements, and even back then they said it "sounds reasonable" compared to how it would have sounded back in, say, 1972.

In 2010, much of the West had already been indoctrinated into climate cultism as the "final solution" to the problem of human industrial activity, which is supposedly "melting" the planet – or in today's vernacular, boiling the oceans. His solution? Kill off billions of people, albeit slowly and peacefully, i.e., through euthanasia.

A computer model developed by Meadows and several of his colleagues argues that the critical line for earth's human carrying capacity was exceeded back around 1980. Since that time, planetary conditions have degraded to the point that even more severe intervention is needed to fix things.

Mass depopulation is how the globalists intend to complete their endgame, allowing them to inherit the world through murder and force.

Proof: International Organizations Engaged in Criminal Conspiracy to Aid & Abet Illegal Immigration into USA; to COLLAPSE the country for UN Agenda 2030 Goals

NATION HAL TURNER 11 FEBRUARY 2024

Organizations: - United Nations - IOM International Organization for Migration - European Union - United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund UNICEF - Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society HIAS - Red Cross - Doctors Without Borders - United Nations Refugee Agency UNHCR - Norwegian Refugee Council

"And catered to by various international government and nongovernment organizations."

A few on the scene include OIM, Red Cross, UNICEF, HIAS, European Union, Doctors Without Borders, UN HCR, and the Norwegian Refugee Council, who offer migrants aid and instructions on how to get to the United States.

Migrants see various maps to telling exactly how to trek to the U.S. border. This map, displayed in a highest care facility, shows the migrant the path across Panama and Costa Rica.

In this footage, a highest worker can be seen explaining exactly how to cross Panama. The video link is posted on Hal Turner News site for February 11, 2024.

A more comprehensive map is distributed by the Red Cross. This map not only shows multiple migration routes to the United States, but also includes rest stops across Central America and Mexico. A similar app is handed out by Medecosine Fronteras, also known as Doctors Without Borders.

Perhaps the most striking form of this aid is a bag which we call a rape kit. It is handed out by the OIM in Colombia before migrants trek through the Darien Gap. The kit, which contains condoms and morning after pills, allows migrants to get more safely in the jungle.

Why are all these groups encouraging migrants and aiding them on the steadily journey? Why is this happening on an organized industrial scale? And why does the U.S. border remain wide open?

In September 2015, the United Nations General Assembly adopted the 2030 agenda for sustainable development. The agenda provides a, quote unquote, blueprint for peace and prosperity for people and the planet, now and into the future.

At its heart are the 17 sustainable development goals. Agenda 2030 outlines a blueprint for world socialism stating that we are embarking on a collective journey to build a world free of poverty, hunger, disease, and want.

In a related paper by the IOM titled migration and the 2030 agenda, a clear plan for mass migration of people is presented. The report begins by stating, the 2030 agenda recognizes migration as a core development consideration, which marks the first time migration is integrated explicitly into the global development agenda and further states, quote, it is possible to link migration to every goal in the 2030 agenda.

Shockingly, the report refers to migrant men, women, and children as agents of development. Finally, the report states that we should not focus efforts on trying to stop migration. Facilitating, not restricting. Migration is the priority.

It is clear that this illegal migration is indeed being facilitated and encouraged. For example, UNICEF, also known as the United Nations Children's Fund, hands out these care packages at Panamanian migration camps.

Notice the subtle messaging on the bag that reads, trust yourself. Delph, you can, encouraging the migrants to continue on their journey.

On the back of a Red Cross map, information is given about the use of freight trains for transportation. Rather than denouncing the dangerous form of transportation, migrants are told to remain seated and look out for any branches, electrical cables, or tunnels. —

There's no doubt that these groups serve as camouflage for spies, criminals, and other nefarious actors seeking to penetrate our borders undetected.

Powerful organizations thousands of miles away, are facilitating the collapse of the US southern border.”

I can't transcribe this but everyone needs to watch this.

THIS IS A FEDERAL FELONY CRIMINAL CONSPIRACY

I am not an attorney, and thus am not competent to render a legal opinion. However, I am also not a Swiss Watchmaker; that doesn't mean I can't read or understand a clock. As a layman, I can read and understand the law the same way I can read and understand a clock. As such, it seems to me the activities you see taking place in the video above, providing maps showing the routes to take to enter the United States unlawfully, is a felony criminal conspiracy. I believe it is a felony to aid or abet anyone intending to enter the United States unlawfully.

I am also of the layman's opinion that, if two or more persons - or organizations - know that a particular activity is unlawful, but AGREE to engage in a particular act together, then that AGREEMENT is a Criminal Conspiracy, a separate federal felony.

Upon watching the video, it seems to me the organizations named in the video are engaged in aiding and abetting people who are planning to illegally enter the United States, and the organizations KNOW this. It also seems to me as a layman, that these organizations being aware of this, and agreeing jointly to assist these illegal invaders, puts ALL the organizations into a federal felony criminal conspiracy for which they can be criminally prosecuted, fined, and jailed.

Why are these organizations NOT being criminally prosecuted?

I urge readers to immediately CEASE any and all donations or help to the organizations shown in the video above.

People who KNOW what these groups are criminally doing, but still give money or other donations to these organizations, could be deemed as Accessories to their crimes by providing material support for these criminal activities.

ENORMOUS CIVIL LIABILITY

The number of violent crimes taking place inside the United States, perpetrated by illegal aliens, is staggering. In very many of these cases, the perpetrators are caught. Civil Attorneys can make themselves an absolute fortune SUING the organizations mentioned above if THE ORGANIZATION(S), in any way, aided the perpetrator in getting to the United States.

While a Civil lawsuit cannot prosecute a CRIME, it can use the perpetration of the crime as the basis for the suit against those ORGANIZATIONS. A Civil suit can argue these organizations FACILITATED the crime, by aiding people the organizations KNEW were coming to the US illegally. The crime victims and their families all have legal standing to bring such actions because they have been directly harmed!

Lawsuit, after lawsuit, after lawsuit, in court, after court, after court, at both the state and federal level, will cost these organizations millions in legal fees just to answer all the suits.

Civil Trial attorneys can tie these organizations up in answering lawsuits, attending depositions, satisfying evidentiary subpoenas, being put on trial. The process alone would tie them up for years!

And since I'm not an attorney and am not subject to the rules of the court, I can suggest this course of action without fear of sanction by a court or threat of losing a law license.

Imagine: Case after case after case. Oh, and media coverage of those cases would be breathtaking. Imagine the possible headlines:

(For example only - no actual suits are pending as far as I know)

"Red Cross Sued over Illegal Alien Who murdered . . . "

"Doctors Without Borders sued over Illegal alien who raped . . . "

"UNICEF sued for diverting money from Children's Funding to Illegal Aliens . . . "

"European Union Sued for aiding Illegal Aliens breaking into USA . . . "

All done through CIVIL actions, which anyone can bring, and not reliant in any way upon State or Federal legal action.

Ford Lost $4.7 Billion On EVs Last Year, Or About $64,731 for Every EV It Sold!

By Robert Bryce | February 7, 2024

How bad is the EV business? Yesterday afternoon, Ford Motor Company reported that the operating loss it incurred on its EV business in 2023 exceeded its total profit for the year.

That shocking fact comes directly from the company's earnings report, which carried the headline, "Ford+ Delivers Solid 2023..." The Dearborn-based auto giant had an operating loss (also known as EBIT, or earnings before interest and taxes) of $4.7 billion on its EV business last year. Meanwhile, the company reported net income (profit) of just $4.3 billion, on revenue of $176 billion. The company also reported operating income, or what it called "adjusted EBIT," of $10.4 billion.

Calculating the company's per-EV operating loss requires only a bit of simple division. The company sold 72,608 EVs last year and had an EBIT loss of $4.7 billion in its "Model e" segment. Thus, the auto giant lost a knee-buckling $64,731 for each EV it sold in 2023. To put that $64,731 per-vehicle loss in perspective, a top-of-the-line Mustang Mach-E listed on the website of a large Ford dealership here in Austin (see below) is selling for $66,615.

The company said the $4.7 billion loss reflected “an extremely competitive pricing environment, along with strategic investments in the development of clean-sheet, next-generation EVs.” The $4.7 billion loss is far higher than the \$3 billion loss Ford projected back in March. Further, it’s more than double the $2.2 billion loss it recorded in the EV segment in 2022. Thus, in the last two years alone, the company has lost nearly $7 billion on its foray into fully electric automobiles. Recall that, as I reported here last July, the company has plans to spend \$50 billion on EVs.

Given the company’s 2023 results, it’s clear that Ford’s headlong plunge into the EV market has been an unmitigated disaster and that the company would be far more profitable had it ignored the EV fad. Of course, the company tried to put a positive spin on its EV results, noting that EV sales rose by 18% last year. But those sales must be put into context. In 2023, Ford sold 750,789 F-Series trucks. Thus, the auto giant sold more than 10 times as many conventionally powered trucks as EVs (72,608).

Warnings about the company’s failing EV business have been coming for months. In December, the automaker announced it was slashing production of its F-150 Lightning in half, from 3,200 trucks per week to 1,600 per week, as part of an effort “to match Lightning production to customer demand.” On January 19, the company said it was cutting production of Lightning even further because, as Reuters reported, “demand for EVs has been lower than expected.”

What should be particularly worrisome for investors — and for the company’s CEO, Jim Farley — is that Ford’s EV losses aren’t falling, they are rising. Indeed, those losses doubled between the first quarter and fourth quarter of 2023. Ford’s first-quarter EV operating loss was $722 million. In the second quarter, it was $1.1 billion. In the third quarter, it was \$1.3 billion, and in the fourth quarter, Ford’s EV operating loss hit $1.57 billion.

Ford’s losses are only part of the ongoing train wreck in the EV market. Last October, General Motors said it would delay the opening of a $4 billion electric truck factory in Michigan for a year. That same month, Reuters reported that Honda and General Motors “were ending a \$5 billion plan to develop lower-cost EVs together just a year after announcing the effort.” The article continued, noting that GM “would focus near-term EV efforts on meeting demand rather than hitting specific volume targets.”

In November, nearly 3,900 automobile dealers across the country sent a letter to President Biden telling him that EV demand is “not keeping up with the large influx of BEVs arriving at our dealerships prompted by the current regulations. BEVs are stacking up on our lots.” They continued, saying EVs are “not selling nearly as fast as they are arriving at our dealerships.”

As I explained in the written testimony I submitted to the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee last month, EVs have always been a niche-market product, not a mass-market one. And that niche market is dominated by wealthy, white, male, liberal voters who live in a handful of heavily Democratic cities and counties.

Further, that niche market is primarily defined by class and ideology. Some 57% of EV owners earn more than $100,000 annually, 75% are male, and 87% are white. Last March, Gallup reported, “a substantial majority of Republicans, 71%, say they would not consider owning an electric vehicle.”

Last October, researchers at the University of California, Berkeley, released a remarkable study that found “counties with affluent left-leaning cities” like Cambridge, San Francisco, and Seattle “play a disproportionately large role in driving the entire national increase in EV adoption.” The researchers found that over the past decade, about half of all the EVs sold in the U.S. were sold in the most heavily Democratic counties in the country. The summary of the study deserves quoting at length:

“The prospect for EVs as a climate change solution hinges on their widespread adoption across the political spectrum. In this paper, we use detailed county-level data on new vehicle registrations from 2012-2022 to measure the degree to which EV adoption is concentrated in the most left-leaning U.S. counties. The results point to a strong and enduring correlation between political ideology and U.S. EV adoption. During our time period about half of all EVs went to the 10% most Democratic counties, and about one-third went to the top 5%. There is relatively little evidence that this correlation has decreased over time, and even some specifications that point to increasing correlation. The results suggest that it may be harder than previously believed to reach high levels of U.S. EV adoption.” (Emphasis added.)

Perhaps the most remarkable thing about the staggering losses at Ford and the other automakers is that the carmakers didn’t understand the limited appeal of EVs. Their lack of knowledge of the history of EVs, the concentrated nature of the market, and the limited number of motorists interested in buying EVs should go down as one of the biggest blunders in modern automobile history. Again, as I noted in my written testimony:

Ford and the other big automakers have been spending billions of dollars to cater to the whims of a tiny segment of the overall car market — a segment heavily concentrated in a handful of liberal counties. That’s a lousy business strategy. But it is an even worse strategy for federal policymakers who must be responsive to the transportation needs of every American, not just those who live in liberal cities and large, wealthy states.

In October, the chairman of Toyota Motor Corporation, Akio Toyoda, gloated about his company’s success with hybrids and the friction other automakers face in the EV business. Toyoda said automakers are “finally seeing reality” about all-electric cars. Unfortunately for Ford and its shareholders, finally seeing reality comes with multi-billion-dollar losses.

A final note: Ford's EV sales in January fell by 11% compared to the same period last year. There's more carnage ahead for FoMoCo.
